Chinese Railway Center Menaced By Jap Advance

Reinforced Invader Army
Closing in on City of Chuhshien

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, June 3 (AP)—The fate of the important rail line center of Chuhshien hung precariously in the balance tonight as Japanese troops, in some places less than ten miles from the city limits, threw reinforcements in an attempt to close in from three sides upon a fiercely resisting Chinese garrison. Capture of Chuhshien, in western Chekiang province forty-five miles southwest of the Japanese-occupied provincial capital of Kihwa, would cut another segment from the 200-mile central section of the Hangchow-Nanchang trunk line. The invaders already hold both terminals. (The Tokyo radio broadcast Domei dispatches detailed "from the suburbs of Chuhshien" saying the city was aflame from bombing and that Japanese troops had crossed a river three miles from the city limits.)

Decision Expected Soon

The Chinese high command said the attack had developed in force since morning. It reported that the invaders had moved from Kihwa to positions northeast, east and southeast of the city, testing out its defenses with patrol forays. With the arrival of strong reinforcements and a letup in recent heavy rains, the Japanese launched a full scale assault supported by intensive artillery fire and some bombing.

Chinese forces were reported firing back with their own batteries and putting up stiff resistance. The Chinese communiqué said fighting also continued on the Kiangsi and Kwangtung province front southwest of Chekiang, and in Hupei province along the Yangtze river to the west.

In Kiangsi, Japanese troops attacking from the Nanchang terminus of the railroad in an attempt to cut off the Chuhshien sector, were reported repulsed for a second consecutive day in fighting near Tsin-shan and Likiatu, southwest of Nanchang.

Reckless Robber Killed in Bank; Wounds 2 Guards

Ex-Convict Shot Down in Chicago Financial Center

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP)—A reckless robber who looked more like a circus clown than desperado stalked into one of the nation's largest banks today in a foolhardy foray that was terminated quickly by a burst of gunfire that left him dead on the marble floor and sent two guards to a hospital with bullet wounds.

The slain bandit was identified by investigators as Henry Karstens, alias James "Shotgun" Cummings, an ex-convict.

Scene of the bizarre attempt to snatch a share of the huge fortune stacked in drawer and vault was the banking department on the second floor of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company on La Salle street in the Loop financial district. The time was shortly before 1 p. m. when the room teemed with scores of patrons transacting business under the eyes of some of the 100 marksmen employed to protect as much as $2,000,000 in cash the institution sometimes has on hand.

Robber Heavily Armed

Karstens was as conspicuous as a king at his coronation as he made his entry. A white stocking cap slitted for the eyes served as a mask for his powdered face. His hands were encased in rubber gloves. He wore a topcoat over a hunting jacket. Suspended from his neck was a valise. In bag, belt and pocket were 150 shells and bullets, a pistol and a knife. He carried a shotgun under his arm.

Witnesses gave this account of the fantastic affair:

The gunman walked toward a cashier's window near the head of the stairs leading up from the street entrance. John Whelan, a guard, approached. The robber told him: "Drop your gun." Whelan ignored the order. Another guard, Thomas Lyons, stole up from behind with his revolver in hand.

Shotgun Falls Him

The masked man, trapped, wheeled on Lyons and pulled the trigger of his shotgun. It failed to discharge, so he banged it against a wall and produced his pistol.

Men and women in the mammoth room scurried behind pillars and stumbled under desks while bullets whined and whizzed. When the hue and turmoil ceased, Karstens lay dead. Whelan was wounded in the jaw and shoulder and Lyons in the neck. They were rushed to a hospital.

Allies and Nazis In Savage Battle In Libya Desert

Fighting on a Large Scale
Is Reported To Be Inconclusive

By EDWARD KENNEDY

CAIRO, June 3 (AP)—The nine-day battle of Libya became tonight a savage struggle for position and supply on the blazing, swirling sands of the desert, with the score still a destructive stand-off between the tanks of the British Eighth army and German African corps.

Two Axis forces, boring toward each other from gaps already created in the mined and semi-fortified Ain El Gazala-Bir Hacheim line, ripped out a nine-mile wide hole in the center, to open up a better connection with the German forces which had withdrawn to the west.

At the same time a British column, circling the main field of action, occupied Rotunda Segnali, a rocky enemy stronghold on the Axis supply line.

This was the result of these actions:

The Nazi marshal, Erwin Rommel, in a position to receive fresh supplies from the west German forces which once were east of the Ain El Gazala line, now was turning to fight the British units both north and south of the German breakthrough, which is twelve miles north of Bir Hacheim.

But the British, by seizing the position far to the west, were so harassing the rearward German supply line that Rommel seemed unlikely to be able to maintain a constant stream of reinforcements for his badly broken armored corps.

Fighting continued at the same terrific pace in the brown muck of continuous sand-storms. These kept air activity to a minimum on both sides, although the British (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Is this what the motoring world has been waiting for? Anthony Morch at the New York Inventors' exposition demonstrates how easily he converts water into gas. The bottle he is holding contains water and sodium. Electricity, he says, generates hydrogen. At a cost of only five cents a gallon the gasless gas is said to have twice the energy of ordinary gasoline. And, says Morch, it is a cinch to convert ordinary automobile engines so they can use the gas.

30,000 RAIDING BOMBERS MAY ATTACK GERMANY EACH MONTH

RAF Command Plans To Send 2,000 Planes into Action in a Single Night, London Asserts

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, June 3. (AP)—The RAF bomber command, having kept the warplane city of Essen under two consecutive nights of fire and blast, disclosed today that it is moving steadily toward a goal of 30,000 raiding bombers over Germany each month, an objective it plans to attain by sending out as many as 2,000 planes in a single night.

Overtaken, British bombers in "very strong" force, but not in the immense strength of the Saturday and Monday night assaults on Cologne and Essen, hammered the Ruhr munitions city and its environs. Fourteen British bombers were shot down in the raid; a higher percentage of losses than the RAF suffered in the 1,000-plane attacks of the previous nights.

Take Further Revenge

But hundreds of RAF fighters exacted further revenge today.

Sweeping across the channel, they harried German airbases, shipping, factories, freight trains and Luftwaffe fighter formations from Holland to Brittany.

In two afternoon sweeps, American-made Boston bombers, escorted by many squadrons of Spitfires, attacked the docks at Cherbourg and Le Havre. Three German fighters were destroyed during the day, and the RAF lost four.

An RAF spokesman, recapitulated the monster Rhine-Ruhr raids which delivered the first massive blows of the fearful onslaught which is planned, declared Britain already had the organization to send 2,000 planes a night against one or more selected targets when that number of craft are available.

He said:

30,000 Planes Monthly

"A thousand planes nightly is not the ultimate peak. There is no reason why another thousand should not attack a second target in Germany at the same time, or follow the first thousand onto the same target. A total of 30,000 planes a month bombing Germany is not a fantastic figure."

Some of the airmen returning from the latest attack reported that the Nazi defenses this time were better than on the previous night or at Cologne. On each of those mass raids, according to the commentator, the defenses were "saturated," with the "German anti-aircraft guns and searchlights unable to concentrate effectively on the vast number of attacking aircraft."

Fire Bomb Light Way

Similarly the fire services and air raid precautions workers were "overwhelmed" by the torrents of incendiary bombs which lit the way for the heavy bombers.

The RFA spokesman said he doubted that casualties in the Ruhr area had reached five figures, since the Germans are believed long since to have evacuated non-essential persons from that sector and to have built extensive underground shelters for the others.

To illustrate the power of the British offensive, these figures were given out in resume:

1,130 planes over Cologne on Saturday night, 1,036 over the Essen vicinity on Monday night; more than 1,000 over France and the channel area during Monday in the intermission between the Cologne and Essen visitations; more than 200 Spitfires, some escorted Hurricane bombers, in sweeps over occupied France this afternoon.

The Germans for their part were active overnight over southeast England. But it was stated here that they operated only in small numbers setting off minor fires and causing some casualties and damage.

House Appropriation Committee Asks Congress To Abolish C.C.C.

By DONALD A. YOUNG

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—By a vote of 15 to 12, the House Appropriations committee asked Congress today to dissolve the Civilian Conservation Camp program by June 30 because it no longer was considered necessary.

Unexpectedly, the committee eliminated entirely a proposed $75,818,000 CCC appropriation for the fiscal year starting July 1 from a billion dollar bill for the Labor department and federal security agency — and members predicted that Congress would sustain them. Thus, the end appeared in sight for a program started nine years ago which has cost $2,800,000,000, has trained a total of 3,000,000 persons and which reached a peak enrollment of 520,000 persons in 1935 at a cost of $489,000,000.

Murray Rejects Demands of UMW And Flays Lewis

President of CIO Charges
Opponent Fomenting
Discontent

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—CIO President Philip Murray rejected scornfully today the demands of leaders of the United Mine Workers upon the CIO and declared John L. Lewis, UMW president, "seems hell bent on the creation of national confusion and national discontent."

The CIO executive board promptly backed up Murray with a resolution denouncing Lewis's policies as "a grave danger to the security of our nation and to the future of the workers in the entire world."

Murray's address to the board and the CIO directors and staff, and the board's resolution, carefully distinguished between the UMW leadership and the membership. Murray said his removal from the union's vice presidency without trial last week after twenty-two years in that office would not destroy his fondness for the rank and file of that organization.

Flays Lewis's Policy

Murray declared Lewis, through labor's non-partisan league, conducted a vigorous lobby against repeal of the neutrality act and against the arming of merchant ships, contrary to the announced policy of the CIO leadership. He accused the mine union president, too, of conducting private negotiations with an AFL leader for merger of the two labor organizations, and of offering to turn over to the CIO United Construction Workers to the AFL building trades.

Earlier in the day Lewis told his policy committee at a separate meeting that criticisms of his stand on foreign policy were "not based upon the truth."

Lewis acknowledged that he had urged non-participation in foreign wars, but declared he had discarded this policy "when it was evident that the nation was to be attacked by foreign enemies."

Informed of Murray's speech, Lewis later denied to newsmen that he or the miners had opposed any proposal of the administration for defense before Pearl Harbor or for war since then. He recalled that Murray, speaking to the mine workers' policy committee last week, said he "had never questioned John L. Lewis's patriotism." Lewis also denied a Murray charge that Lewis had asked the CIO president to oppose the president's foreign policies and said Murray's speeches indulged in "irrational emotionalism."

House Declares War upon Three Pro-Axis Nations

Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania Now Classed with "Big Shots"

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON, June 3. (AP)—In rapid-fire order, the House passed without a dissenting vote and sent to the Senate today three resolutions declaring war on Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

The action carried out a recommendation made yesterday by President Roosevelt in a special message to Congress.

Three separate roll-calls were taken as members went on record for the sixth time since last December 7 for a declaration of war. Named as enemies in the earlier resolutions were Japan, Germany and Italy.

Contrast To First Vote

In sharp contrast to the somber atmosphere that prevailed in the House last December when war was declared against the Axis "big shots," there was an air of levity as the three satellite nations were brought into the fold of Uncle Sam's enemies.

Members milled around, talking and laughing, as the votes were taken without previous explanation or debate.

Bulgaria was the subject of the first resolution, which was passed by a vote of 357 to 0. By the time the second resolution, aimed at Hungary, was disposed of, three more members had shown up and the vote was announced as 359 to 0 and later officially changed to 360 to 0.

The last resolution, naming Rumania, was passed 361 to 0.

4 Bombers, 15 Fighters, Set Fires and Cause Few Casualties in Two Raids

Warehouses Set Ablaze, Navy Department Announces; Attacks Made To Save Face Are Six Hours Apart, Statement Declares in Minimizing Importance of Jap Move; Few Details Public

WASHINGTON, June 3. (AP)—Two Japanese air raids, believed from a carrier, were launched at Dutch Harbor, United States naval base in Alaska, within six hours today, setting off intensified precautions against any unexpected Japanese thrust along the vast Pacific frontier.

Four bombers with an escort of about fifteen fighter planes carried out the first attack at 6 a. m. (local time), setting warehouses ablaze and causing a few casualties.

While details of the results from this assault were still incomplete, the Navy department here received at 9 p. m. (eastern war time) tonight a brief report of the second raid. There were no details at all of the second attack beyond the bare fact that it had occurred. (It is presumed the same planes attacked.)

The latest naval communiqué said merely:

"1. A brief report just received in the Navy department states that for the second time today enemy planes have attacked Dutch Harbor.

"2. The second attack was made about 12:00 noon, local time (6 p. m., eastern war time), six hours after the initial attack.

"3. No further details are available at this time."

Gov. Ernest Gruening of Alaska warned all civilian defense units throughout the territory to "remain on the alert" and told the people that "an anticipated air raid on Alaska began this morning with an attack by Jap planes on Dutch Harbor."

California Warned

In California, the Los Angeles county defense council issued an "emergency alert," calling for sharp vigilance and readiness for instant action. Army authorities in the Panama Canal zone announced at Balboa that the alert state there had been intensified and the leaves and passes of all soldiers and sailors cancelled.

The launching of the second raid within hours of the first led to the surmise here that the initial attack might have been designed merely to feel out the defenses of the Aleutian island base—to test the effectiveness of the detection devices, the severity of the anti-aircraft fire and the numbers of defending planes.

If the first assault was in fact a feint, the second would be likely to have been carried out with more than the four bombers which participated in the first.

Possibly Independent Raids

The possibility also was seen, however, that the two raids might have been independent operations, launched from separate land bases or aircraft carriers.

The meagerness of the information immediately available on the second raid did not necessarily cause alarm for the safety of the Dutch Harbor personnel and the radio and other installations there. Some hours intervened between the time the first raid occurred and the time when the few details available were made public.

Officials had long expected an assault in the Alaskan area principally as a face-saving device after Brigadier General Jimmy Doolittle's raid on Tokyo and other Japanese cities, and the station was described as prepared to meet it.

Face-Saving by Japs

"Japan was expected to try to retaliate for the raid by our American fliers," said Chairman Connally (R-Tex.) to the Senate Foreign Relations committee, "it was apparently part of their face-saving process."

But whether the attack was merely a nuisance raid or the start of an offensive designed to knock out the North Pacific bases from which American planes may strike at the Japanese mainland could not be determined from officials here pending the release of further information.

At Seattle, Rear Admiral C. S. Freeman, commander of the 13th naval district, said:

"This attack was not a surprise."

BALTIMORE, June 3 (AP)—Baltimore, the nation's seventh city, went into its longest blackout test of the war tonight while thousands of civilian defense workers, air raid wardens, and others took the opportunity to give air raid precautions and preparations a thorough trial.

More than 25,000 defense workers, state guardsmen, and Maryland minute men were ordered out for duty during the three-hour test from 9 p. m. until midnight.

Only automobile traffic, street cars, street lights and busy war industry plants were exempt from the order as defense officials in every part of the city checked homes and business houses to determine effectiveness of the test.

An estimated million persons were affected by the order.

Textile Labor Editor Says Lewis Is Fascist, Ungrateful Hypocrite

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Textile Labor, official publication of the CIO Textile Workers Union of America, says in a front page editorial in its June issue that "John L. Lewis is Fascist in thought and method and his preeminence as a labor leader in no way changes or extenuates that accusation."

The editorial, signed by Editor Val Burati, also said:

"John L. Lewis is attempting to build up a personal empire for no good purpose."

"The fact that in accomplishing his purpose he must willingly accomplish some good for his members does not deny the essential rottenness of his objectives."

"Even Hitler had to solidify his position by creating a certain amount of social security for his (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Seattle Warned Japs May Attack

SEATTLE, June 3 (AP)—Japan's aerial attacks on Dutch Harbor, Alaska, brought a warning from civilian defense leaders today for Seattle's citizenry to check air raid instructions and prepare their homes for possible blackout.

Al J. Ruth, chief of staff to the Seattle director of civilian protection, cited the approach of the war to half the distance from Japan to the Puget Sound area's vital war industries. Dutch Harbor is less than 2,000 miles from Seattle.

"A lot of people have been planning to make adequate blackout preparations for a long time," he commented, "but have been putting it off from day to day. The attack on Dutch Harbor should be a signal to them that it's not safe to procrastinate any longer."

Seven Merchant Vessels Sunk By Japanese in Bay of Bengal

[By The Associated Press]

A blasting attack by three Japanese cruisers in the Bay of Bengal off India was revealed by the Navy yesterday to have cost the United Nations seven merchant vessels, one of them a United States ship.

Losses from other areas raised to eleven the toll of Allied ships reported during the day as having been sunk.

News of the Bay of Bengal sinkings April 6 by warships which fired scores of shells at their prey and created a virtual hail of shrapnel above survivors was accompanied by official announcements of the torpedoing of three more vessels in the Atlantic by enemy submarines. The score for the last four days in the Atlantic battleground now stands at twelve.

Russians Attack Nazi Airdromes On Large Scale

Down 40 Planes and Damage 13 in Intensified Raids

MOSCOW, June 3 (AP)—The Russians, heartened by the big British air raids on the Rhineland, have started intensified bombings of German airdromes on the Soviet-German front, dispatches from the battle area said today.

The Nazis, the dispatches declared, have failed to gain the aerial initiative in the east or to produce the long promised clouds of new planes.

Russian bombers destroyed eleven planes on the ground and another trying to take off from an airport on the Leningrad front, it was reported, while Red fighters downed forty planes and damaged thirteen others on this front.

The midnight Soviet communiqué also credited Red airmen with sinking two enemy torpedo cutters, damaging three ships including two transports, inflicting heavy casualties on four Nazi companies, blowing up an ammunition dump, and destroying or damaging a number of German tanks and forty trucks with troops and supplies on Tuesday.

Local battles raged along the front, but there were no significant changes, the communiqué said.

members. A partial success is the requisite of treason.

The editorial further described Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, as an "ungrateful hypocrite who deserted the president when he could not bend the president to his will, who deserted the CIO when he could not bend that to support his own delusions, who deserted Phil Murray (CIO president) when Murray revealed that he was a man in his own right and refused to become merely another Lewis stooge."

managed to bomb some of the enemy mechanized units north of Bir Hacheim.

Rommel's Italian allies tried a second attack on Bir Hacheim, only to be thrown back again by the Free French defenders, whom the British now call "the Fighting French."

All this created the second phase of the greatest battle yet fought in the African sands. The first phase ended when the Germans failed in their attempt to knock out the British armor—largely because of the fire-power of the 28-ton "General Grant" tanks from the United States—and fell short of their primary goal, capture of Tobruk. They withdrew from a furious tank battle at Knightsbridge, 15 miles southwest of Tobruk, and part of the enemy forced their way westward through two slits in the Gazala line.

The remainder, remaining east of the line, then knocked out the nine-mile hole in the center of the British defenses.

was 2,652 but recently was cut to 400 and officials said that only about $141,000,000 of a $246,000,000 appropriation for the current fiscal year would be used.

Rep. Engel (R-Mich.) Appropriations committee member who made the motion to strike out the CCC funds, said the effect would be "to cut off the CCC at the end of this month."

"Buildings and equipment would be turned over to the army," he said. "Any buildings and equipment that the army doesn't want will be turned over to local communities for such things as 4-H clubs and similar organizations."

Will Help Farmers

A great many of the members felt that with young men being drafted and with the influx of young men from the farms to war jobs in the cities, the CCC would be taking away a needed supply of farm labor," Engel said afterward. The big supply bill from which the CCC funds were stricken would finance for the new fiscal year activities of a score of agencies such as the wage-hour administration, the National Labor Relations Board, the National Youth Administration and the Social Security Board.

The committee trimmed President Roosevelt's request for money for some of the agencies and directed sharp criticism at the NLRB and the Wage-Hour Administration for not following recommendations of Congress last year in some of their activities.

Vinson Requests 500 Fighting Ships At a Total Cost of $8,300,000,000

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—A gigantic ship construction measure calling for more than 500 fighting vessels at a cost of $8,300,000,000 was introduced today by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House naval committee in a move to double the size of the fleet.

The legislation, envisioning the greatest outlay in history for a single naval building program, ultimately would place on the high seas more than 1,000 United States men of war of all types, including those now in service and under construction.

The bill, drafted by Vinson after consultation with navy officials, would boost to approximately $170,000,000,000 this nation's defense war allotments in the past three years. Of that amount, approximately $47,000,000,000 would be earmarked for the navy.

Vinson's measure calls for 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers, 500,000 tons of light and heavy cruisers, 900,000 tons of destroyers and escort vessels, and 800 small vessels for patrol work, mine laying and tending duty.

No New Battleships

It provides for no battleships, in line with the navy's determination, as reported by Vinson, to concentrate on plane carrier construction along with vessels to form a protective screen for aerial attacks on the world's distant seaboards.

"The two ocean navy probably will be finished in the next twenty-four months," Vinson reported in explaining the bill. He said construction under the new measure would begin just as soon as ways now occupied with ships are vacated.

In the last official outline of strength last October, the navy reported 345 fighting ships in service and 347 building. Since then, it has reported eighteen combat ships lost, but the announcements of new vessels launched and commissioned have exceeded that figure.

100 New Submarines

Meanwhile, without a dissenting vote, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill carrying $2,797,499,740 in direct appropriations and contract authorizations for the navy, including $887,500,000 for "more than 100" new submarines and $115,000,000 for 500,000 tons of naval

Seven Merchant

of the British merchantman Charlbury May 28 off the Brazilian coast was reported by forty survivors who reached Recife.

The skipper of the American ship sunk in the Bay of Bengal, Capt. Ragnar Eklund of New York, indicated that the devastation wrought by the Japanese was much greater than the official confirmations. He said the enemy "cleaned out every ship in the bay" or about eighteen or twenty ships, in an interview at Norfolk, Va.

Estimating that some 150 seamen perished in the Bay of Bengal action, Eklund said a British bombing plane appeared about an hour after the attack and fired one of the Japanese ships with bombs.

Seven survivors of the Bay of Bengal action have been landed at Norfolk, Va. The ship's entire crew of thirty-seven escaped on rafts and lifeboats.

Shipyards Set Record

Against this picture of continued losses, the Maritime Commission reported American shipyards set an all-time record in May with the completion and delivery of fifty-eight steel merchant ships of approximately 632,000 deadweight tons. The navy announced during May the sinking of thirty-one American ships of an undisclosed aggregate tonnage.

One of the Atlantic sinkings was a medium-sized United States merchant vessel, which was torpedoed early last month along with a large British ship in the Caribbean area. All eighty-three crewmen and eight passengers of the two ships escaped death.

Thirty-three survivors landed at eastern ports from the third torpedoed ship, a medium-sized British merchantman, sunk several hundred miles east of Bermuda.

Operation Paves Way for Man To Join Air Force

John Burch Throws Away His Cane and Prepares To Fight

By AMY PORTER

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—John Burch tossed away his cane today and did an Irish jig—he's that happy to hear he's physically fit now to become a pilot with the United States army air force.

A game leg had him down for awhile, but a group of World War I flyers arranged for an operation that fixed him up as good as new.

He'll be re-examined within a few days, and doctors tell him he can pass the toughest physical. Burch, 22-year-old trombone player from Brooklyn, is one of more than 6,000 young would-be pilots who have come to the American Flying Services Foundation for advice and help. The Foundation has rehabilitated 2750 who now are in training for one of the United States flying services.

Supported by Fliers The foundation, supported by fliers and aviation enthusiasts in 160 cities, aims to correct deficiencies which bar young men from enlistment in the flying services. Statistics show that sixty-five per cent of the applicants rejected have minor correctable disabilities—defective teeth, faulty vision, flat feet, or, like Burch, an uncare-for injury.

While in training for the air force of an allied nation, Burch suffered a knee injury. After three months of hospitalization he still was limping around with a cane, and now and then he faints from pain.

He asked for a discharge and came home to apply for ground crew work at Mitchell Field. Someone told him about the Foundation. On April 25, he talked to Dr. S. M. Strong, World War I veteran and the Foundation's medical director. Two days later, he underwent an operation to remove a damaged cartilage from his knee, and on May 2 went home on crutches.

Now he's through with his cane.

government officials, doctors, ministers, nurses and other essential persons. Persons needing less gasoline than that provided by "C" cards will have some coupons torn out.

Thus, a country doctor, with much necessary traveling to do, would have more coupons left in his book than a city physician. Commercial and industrial users, now entitled to unlimited supplies, with or without "X" cards, will be required to present the new "S" cards when making purchases.

The "S-1" card, intended for light commercial vehicles and trucks, will have ninety-six coupons, each coupon calling for a unit of five gallons of gasoline—instead of the lesser gallonage per unit for passenger cars. The "S-2" cards for heavier vehicles will contain 384 five-gallon coupons.

May Eliminate "Bootlegging"

The OPA official said the permanent program was expected to eliminate the possibilities of "bootlegging" and favoritism existing in the temporary plan, under which no restraint is placed on dealers and an "honor system" is used.

To qualify for a "B" or "C" card an automobile owner must prove one of two things: First, that he has formed a car-pooling club with at least three other automobile owners to conserve tire mileage, or, that this is impossible for some valid reason.

Must State Distances

He will be required to state the total distance he must travel, and will be issued the proper card on this basis. The gasoline to which the "A" card entitles him may then be used for family or pleasure driving without restraint.

It is expected that drivers may be required to present statements from their employers certifying their need for additional gasoline supplies.

The disclosure of the projected new system came toward the close of a day during which Rep. Belter (D-NY) said he had learned from Petroleum Coordinator Ickes that a nationwide rationing program would become effective July 15. However, Nelson stressed there had been no decision as yet.

The Petroleum Industry War Council, an advisory body to Ickes declared itself opposed to nationwide rationing to conserve rubber, "until further facts are made available justifying such rationing."

said they sank forty to fifty steam launches packed with Japanese soldiers.

The war report said the Japanese also had attempted to gain another foothold in southeastern Chekiang province by forcing a landing under cover of gunboats along the coast northeast of Wenchow, near Yunan island, but withdrew with heavy losses.

Chinese troops apparently still had the initiative in Hupeh province where the Japanese-occupied town of Shansi has been under attack since last Friday.

Chinese dispatches said Japanese losses there had increased to 400 with the Chinese wedged into the outer defenses of the city.

Kansas City Gets Legion Convention

INDIANAPOLIS, June 3 (AP)—The National Executive committee of the American Legion today selected Kansas City, Mo., for the legion's 1942 national convention.

New Orleans originally had been selected as the convention city but gave up the meeting because of its coastal location and a threatened shortage of transportation facilities. The convention will be held Sept. 19-21 and Legion officials said it would be streamlined to fit the war emergency.

Murray extended the "hand of welcome to the United Mine Workers to sit with us," but added: "I cannot, however, agree that the United Mine Workers can continue through their officers, to occupy a position of good standing while delinquent in their per capita tax." He said as one member of the CIO board he could not consider the "dunning letters" of the mine union as per capita tax payments.

Murray was referring to the UMW declaration that it would not make further cash tax payments until the CIO acknowledged a debt of $1,665,000 but meanwhile the CIO could credit the miners with per capita tax monthly by deducting it from the loan account.

Board Member Resigns

Differences of opinion within the United Mine Workers itself were stressed tonight when Martin Wagner, member of the UMW international board for district 50, announced that he had resigned.

In a letter to Lewis, Wagner said "the working men and women whom I have been privileged to represent on the board can no longer endure the dictatorial suppression of all democratic rights."

Wagner also said he and his constituents could no longer support the policies of the UMW leadership in "attacking the CIO, its president Philip Murray and granting only lip service to the president of the United States."

Wagner was the only member of the miners board who voted last week against the removal of Murray as vice president of the miners.

Besides the financial demand upon the CIO, the UMW committee also has stipulated that as the price of continued affiliation the CIO must enter unity negotiations with the AFL, presumably with Lewis as chairman of the CIO committee.

Warning to Lewis

"If," declared Murray, "that is what Mr. Lewis means, let me hasten to assure him he is not president of any CIO Peace committee. I really mean that."

Murray scorned another demand that all attacks upon district 50, the UMW Chemical and Dairy Branch, must cease. He announced the CIO today filed with Lewis charges that district 50 had made jurisdictional raids on the Transport Workers Union in New York. He also said the New Jersey CIO council was preferring "serious charges" against district 50.

A delegation representing Newark, N. J., members of district 50 of the UMW attended the board meeting and petitioned for a CIO charter. They carried placards reading, "New Jersey district 50 member say win the war with Phil Murray," and "N. J. district 50 locals want Murray and Roosevelt, not Lewis and Hitler."

The delegation issued a statement saying the members of district 50 had been denied autonomy in the miners' union and wished to be admitted "into the real house of labor."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

At this stage, it is difficult to predict exactly what effect the British bombing of Germany will have on German public morale or on Hitler's war effort against Russia.

There is no yardstick of previous experience by which to gauge the probabilities—except the Battle of Britain. British endurance won out then. The odds against the British even though the British attack on such German cities as Cologne and Essen was probably twice as heavy as that any British community lived through in a single night.

The miracles wrought by British homeguard air forces against succeeding waves of Nazi attack week after week and month after month were rivaled only by the stoicism of the British people. Under the ordeal by fire they never flinched and never stopped working to produce the tools with which to strike back.

Nazis Well Prepared

The fact that England emerged from the great test with nerves unshaken and war-making capacity steadily expanding instead of dwindling gives little reason to suppose that German morale will quickly break under a similar strain. Nazism is unquestionably better prepared to meet this test than was England. It would be folly to put much faith in hopes that Germany can quickly be knocked out of the war through any internal collapse brought on solely by a British or British-American air attack.

There are two ways, however, in which the attack could be quickly effective in changing the whole pattern of the war in Europe. A progressive blasting of German cities could lead to an irresistible public demand in Germany and recall of Nazi air and other forces from Russia or from other distant fronts. Hitler could be forced into a strictly defensive role, defensive even if it took the form of massed counter air attacks on England.

Invasion Considered

The British air forces present another menace for Germany, aside from the damage to war industry or the casualties they cause. They leave no doubt that an air weapon is already forged and is being expanded day by day across the channel which could make Allied

Farm Women Plan Homemakers' Day

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 3 (AP)—Farm women from all sections of Maryland will attend the Homemakers' Day at the University of Maryland June 17, when one of the principal speakers will be Dr. Liu Chieh, counselor of the Chinese embassy in Washington.

The program replaces the regular rural women's short course, a week-long affair called off this year because of a shortage of farm labor and tire and gasoline rationing.

A special meeting of the State Council of Homemakers' Executive Board will be held at the university June 16 when officers will be elected and directors and project chairmen appointed.

Miss Venia M. Keller, assistant extension service director, said the annual short course was eliminated only after serious consideration of all factors and after many farm women reported they would not be able to attend for a full week.

Library Association To Meet Friday

BRADDOCK HEIGHTS, Md. June 3 (AP)—A two-day spring meeting of the Maryland Library Association placing emphasis on the role of the state's libraries in creating enlightened public opinion will open Friday.

There will be a business session Friday morning, followed by a luncheon at which Dr. Harold C. Hand of the University of Maryland will speak on the "role of library service in the present emergency." He also will lead a panel discussion of the "Functions of Maryland Libraries Today."

War Bonds Will Be Given Away Tonight At Theater Party

A theatre and radio party in the interests of the war bond and savings stamp campaign will be held this evening at 9 o'clock in the Strand theater, and will be preceded by a parade by the drum and bugle corps of Kelly-Mansfield Post, American Legion, Piedmont, W. Va. The party, arranged by the Allegheny County War Bond Committee, in co-operation with Radio Station WTBO and Fielding K. O'Kelly, manager of the Strand, is open to the public, without admission charge, and a substantial number of war bonds donated by local industries and merchants will be given away.

Appearing on the program will be the Allegheny high school band and local radio favorites. Several movie shorts also will be shown.

Local Officers Attend B.O. Vets Convention

Walter W. Seel, president of Division No. 5, and Mrs. G. A. Crass, president, and Mrs. G. W. Wenrich, of Allison lodge No. 4, ladies auxiliary, are attending the convention of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Veterans' Association in Wheeling, W. Va.

The convention, which opened yesterday and will be concluded Saturday, is being held in the McClure hotel.

Motorist Is Charged With Careless Driving

Patrick O. Meyers, 227 Oak street, was arrested near The Dingle circle at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a charge of careless driving entered by Officer F. A. Shober. Shober said Meyers passed several cars on a hill and was driving so fast he was unable to return his car to the right side of the road.

Hearing is set for 10 o'clock this morning in police court. Shober is released on bond of $10 pending the hearing.

Abandon Search For Missing Child

CAMBRIDGE, Md., June 3 (AP)—W. Calvin Harrington, Jr., Dorchester county state's attorney, said tonight that county authorities had given up the search for Benjamin Lewis, Jr., two and one-half-year old Baltimore child, missing on Hooper's Island since Saturday.

The announcement came after an intensive but fruitless day-long search conducted by scores of persons, including Boy Scouts, state police, county officials, and islanders.

Liquor Store Profit

SALISBURY, Md., June 3 (AP)—A net profit of $67,758, or 17.26 per cent, was reported today by the manager of the Wicomico county liquor dispensary to the board of commissioners for the twelve months ended April 30.

KEEP ARTIFICIAL BOUTONNIERES FRESH. Don't let the stems become bent or droop. When you put flowers away between wearings, smooth the leaves and petals into shape. You may brush them occasionally, too, with a soft brush and then wrap them carefully in tissue paper until the next wearing.

IT'S EASY TO WASH A DIAMOND. Boil some water in a pan, add a little household ammonia, drop the diamond in it; then clean the diamond with the ammonia and a nail brush, dry it, and there you are!

PEARLS SHOULD BE RESTRUNG at least once a year. Meanwhile, examine the threads for signs of wear. Do not twist or toy with pearls when wearing them. Lay them flat when you put them away. Occasionally rub them with a chamois, going in between the beads to remove deposit collected on them.

Clean your pearls with a mild soap and warm water. Use a small soft brush.

GOLD-PLATED JEWELRY should be rubbed with a piece of chamois every now and then. If water is used, be sure the jewelry is thoroughly dried. Salt or perspiration are likely to cause gold-plated jewelry to tarnish. If the chamois doesn't clean the jewelry well enough, try a mild silver polish, but be sure to do it very gently, so there's no chance of wearing through the thin plating.

Some More Information About a Democratic Boss

THE NEWS has heretofore referred sketchily to E. Brooke Lee, of Montgomery county, who has tossed his hat into the ring for the Democratic nomination for Sixth district representative, as a politician of the first water. It is indebted to the current issue of the Bethesda Journal for additional light and corroboration as to that. This shows that Lee is not only a top-ranking politico, but also an opportunist of equal rating.

The Journal answers rather fully the question as to what manner of man an unjaundiced eye perceives this candidate to be. "A tireless and energetic worker," it says, "quick, skillful and adroit in his calculations, Brooke Lee regards politics as a Big Business, a business that he must stay atop to beat."

"Politicians he considers composed of two varieties, active ones and passive ones, the leaders and the led. In Montgomery county he has made himself the leader, and he leads the organization machine politicians as inconspicuously as possible, well satisfied if nobody but these lesser politicians know that they are being led. He is Boss of the county, whether he could make himself Boss of Congress or even a small clique in Congress is doubtful."

He is a 'spoils system' politician. If sent to the Hill he will secure whatever federal funds for Montgomery county possible, and if it is not downright inconvenient he will try to get a few appropriations for the remainder of his congressional district. This statement should not be construed as necessarily unfavorable to Maj. Lee. Political theorists will argue whether or not a congressman stands in relation to his constituents as a lawyer to a client. Should a legislator do the best he can for those that elected him, and let the rest take care of themselves, or should a legislator, after election, put the general good of the entire country above every other consideration?

Candidate Lee is a one hundred per cent Roosevelt man—before and after Chicago, before and after Pearl Harbor. If a war-time president should have congressmen on the Hill that will give him their full support whether he is right or whether he is wrong, Lee should be elected. If in time of war a congressman should say to the president 'yea' when the president is right, and 'nay' when he is wrong—a prerogative and a duty in time of peace, as nobody will deny—the voter will have some misgivings in Brooke Lee.

The Journal notes also a trait of stubbornness in the Lee make-up. That is, he is headstrong for one Mr. Lee: "... all will be aware that if Lee is sent to Congress, the affairs of Montgomery county will be directed, for better or worse, as he alone sees fit. Once elected he will have the bit in his teeth. Past experience has shown that he has a tough mouth, and has never been taught to neck-rein."

So much for the manner of man this candidate is. As for the announcement of his candidacy, the Journal reports that it came as no surprise to anyone in Montgomery county. "Nor was it a surprise," it further reports, "that the local Democratic machine was ready on twelve hours' notice to deny the two other Democratic candidates, Mrs. Mollie Nicholson and Mrs. Katherine Byron, and come out vociferously for Mr. Lee. It was indeed entirely according to expectation to find the machine saying that any dissatisfaction with Boss Lee's rule in the county is wholly imaginary, and merely Republican propaganda."

But, if Lee is the Boss of the Works in Montgomery, does he carry it in his vest pocket? Not at all, according to the Journal. "Some will vote for him and some against him," it declares. Thus the division in Democratic ranks represented by his candidacy is seen to extend farther than the mysterious and unexplained inside "throwing" of the incumbent representative.

Maryland's New Enemy Aliens

AS these lines were typed, the House of Representatives at Washington had approved a declaration of war against Bulgaria and the prospects were that, in accordance with the recommendation of President Roosevelt, war declarations will be voted against that nation, Hungary and Roumania, thus completing a state of belligerency both as against them as well as that which some time since was declared against the United States.

Marylanders will have little to worry about possible fifth columnists among the denizens of these nationalities within the state. For one reason, their number is negligible the Justice department listing only seven Bulgarians, 655 Hungarians and 241 Roumanians as being domiciled here and registered, which mean that they are under watchful eyes. But for another and more important reason, these few are most likely as unfriendly to the existing governments of their mother countries, if they may be dignified by that term, as are Americans.

War against Bulgaria, Hungary and Roumania is not directed against the peoples of those tyrannized lands, but against the puppet rule set up by their brutal conquerors. These peoples who have come to the United States for the most part came here for the enjoyment of its freedoms and the opportunities offered under them, and probably nearly all of them have planned eventually to become American citizens. Also racially they are not of the treacherous type of the Nazis or the Japs. They are Balkans, of course, and their peoples have led stormy careers in the past, but those here as well as those now enslaved are doubtless as anxious for liberty as millions of other unfortunate Europeans now groaning under the yoke of a ruthless master.

War Damage Insurance

INASMUCH as the Cumberland area is a transportation and industrial center and as a movement is under way to have it designated as a defense area, people of the community will doubtless be interested in the announcement from Washington that arrangements for government insurance of private property against damage from enemy attack have been completed.

The War Damage Corporation, set up recently by Congress as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, states that policies will be available about June 20.

The rates will range from five cents on each $100 on crops and ten cents on dwellings up to seventy-five cents on yachts. Other rates include ten cents on resistant construction, otherwise fifteen cents, for churches, hospitals and public buildings; fifteen and twenty cents similarly for apartments, office buildings and warehouses; twenty and thirty cents for factories, wharves and bridges; thirty cents for public utilities, twenty-five cents for railroad rolling stock, ten cents for roadbeds and trackage and thirty cents for other railroad property.

More government in private business? No, not this time, for which an alert Congress perhaps deserves some thanks. The insurance will be taken on locally by local fire insurance agents and through private fire insurance companies, which are participating in the plan and which will be official agents of the government in selling the policies. Another score in behalf of private enterprise.

Good Teamwork In Sugar Rationing

THE REMARKABLE SUCCESS of the registration for sugar rationing was due to the good work of thousands of able people who were skilled in dealing with new situations. Use of the school organizations was the happiest thought of Washington rationing officials. They worked with rationing boards in an atmosphere of merit and efficiency, with no forced consideration of local politics to disturb or thwart the process.

Increased allowances of sugar for canning have been granted. This merely means that those who feel that they can use more sugar for this purpose will be permitted to buy it. Going through the routine will entail some inconvenience, but it can not be avoided, and all of it causes more inconvenience to rationing workers, most of whom are volunteers, than to the applicant.

If all the possible benefits of rationing are obtained, the people will not only make limited quantities of necessities go as far as possible, but will learn the teamwork that is essential to the utmost in the civilian war effort. That discipline, self-imposed and cheerfully and patiently exercised, may prove to be one of the most powerful of the deciding factors in the final outcome.

It has been decided once more than Harry Bridges should be deported, but the less glibly are betting that he won't be.

Two Men at a Corner

By MARSHALL MASLIN

One man said: "In my lifetime I have turned my head to stare, at least a hundred times, at a pretty girl. And never once in all those years have I caught one of those pretty girls turning around to stare at me." He sounded very regretful.

The other man said: "Why do women fuss at men? They seem to want their husbands to be perfect. You'd think, after all the sad experience they've had, that they'd give up."

One man said: "The average woman is perfectly happy when she has a new outfit on; the average man is vaguely miserable in a new suit and doesn't feel comfortable until it's been cleaned once."

The other man said: "Somehow I distrust people who don't enjoy eating."

One man said: "It was years before I felt entirely at ease when I entered a bank and I'll never be able to go into a store to buy a new pair of shoes without wondering if there's a hole in my sock."

The other man said: "When I was 15 years old I ditched one girl and started going with another. I've forgotten both their names and they've forgotten about me. I'll never stop being slightly ashamed of my dark past."

One man said: "When I was a kid I always thought I'd like to run away from home. I never did, but I wish I had."

The other man said: "Sometimes when I'm laying down the law to my children I suddenly realize how little, after all, I really do know about life—and I wonder if they'll discover that."

And the other man said: "They probably know it now but they're too wise to let you know they're wise to you."

Commies Want a Political Decision In Bridges Case

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 3—Painful outbursts of domestic Commies against Attorney General Biddle's proof that their party teaches (to use his words and theirs) "violent overthrow of existing governments, including the United States", gives their whole case away fully and irrefragably.

If Mr. Biddle wanted a list of citizens whose minds run along the Commie line, a better list than Dies ever got, all he has to do is read his mail.

A New York newspaper of screaming Communist sympathies is urging readers to write Biddle, and it furnishes a coupon for that purpose, on which a space is left for the address as well as the name. Don't leave off the address, comrades, so the FBI will be able to find you promptly, in case of need.

But a better joke on the Commies and their sympathizers is the line their leadership in this Bridges case has taken. Mr. Biddle made his decision on a basis of law and legal proof. He took a 10,000 page report of evidence away to seclusion, studied it and reached his decision. His associates quote him as saying:

"I wanted a strictly judicial opinion in this case."

In fact, he was so considerate of Bridges and the Commies he publicly pointed out the way they could and should appeal his decision to the supreme court. That is the legal, American way to get justice.

Not Rushing to Court

But are they hastening to the courts for justice? Not at all. None of their complaints against Biddle consider this a question of law.

Their primary effort is not to disprove Biddle's evidence. They don't want law this time, or the protection of the constitution through the courts.

They want a political reconsideration by Biddle. They say they want him to reverse his findings of the law immediately on the purely political ground it would be a horrible thing for the domestic Commies to be displeased with Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Biddle and the American government.

Only a defendant who has a very bad case openly seeks protection of the cloak of politics against the law.

Disunity an Argument

Their plea is also founded upon the publicly-stated supposition that the Commies will interfere with our war production and promote disunity, if Mr. Biddle does not forget the law and save them from the supreme court. Thus they themselves claim to have a superior interest to that of this country.

They claim they would and could interfere with our war effort. Is any further confession necessary of their power among us and their subversive inclinations toward us, than this from their own mouths and from the mouths of their most ardent sympathizers?

The general impression in Congress and downtown inside the government is that Biddle's decision was a personal and conscientious one. Most people here believe that. He saw the president just afterwards, but says that matter was not discussed. He gives a convincing off-the-record explanation of another matter which was discussed and it had nothing to do with Communism.

Political Offset

Nevertheless, some officials chose to suspect the decision was rendered as a domestic political offset to the presidential pardon of the perennial Communist presidential

WESSON RETIRES

Maj. Gen. Wesson

After four years as chief of ordnance of the United States Army, Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson is retiring. At a testimonial dinner given to him at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city, Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson awarded him an oak-leaf cluster to add to his Distinguished Service Medal saying that his skill and boldness contributed greatly to the success of the United Nations' war effort.

THE KID WITH A BENT PIN AND PIECE OF STRING

Coupled Canal Project Caused Defeat Of Florida Oil Line, Sullivan Reports

BY MARK SULLIVAN

candidate, Mr. Browder. They say that decision caused a bad impression out in the country which needed correcting.

Certainly it seems true that the president later recommended a declaration of war against Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary for the sake of Russian relations to a considerable extent. It bolsters Stalin's position.

But the Red government has never yet appealed to this government in behalf of a domestic Commie, holding consistently that the local boys are beyond their jurisdiction. Therefore, international considerations could hardly have had anything to do with either the Browder or Bridges cases, and our relations with Russia cannot be affected one way or another by whatever is done with the local boys.

In Right Places

Mr. Roosevelt has carefully kept the two things in their right places, where the Commies maintain they should be.

The domestic Commies always appeal to our bighearted liberals on the ground that they are persecuted verbally by Red-baiters in this country, and they are raising this point again to gain adherents against Mr. Biddle, claiming the right to agitate in the Daily Worker, to designate loyal and disloyal American citizens, to weed out their political opponents, to tell our Congress what to do, to call Mr. Roosevelt a "war monger" at intervals when they are on that side of the party line, and to infiltrate into our labor unions or wherever they can.

Consistency Unlikely

They would have impressive appeal if they could arrange for us democrats to do the same in Moscow. Their influence with Stalin does not seem to be great, and perhaps he might not like the idea, but it would certainly help their claims here if they could arrange with him to have us publish a paper in Moscow advocating democracy as the best form of government, let us infiltrate into their labor groups and campaign for democracy in Russia and put up a ticket against Stalin at the next election, tell him who is loyal to him and who is not.

That would make paper things even, but I doubt if the domestic Commies will ask Stalin to grant us the same rights they claim here. Onesided people, these.

There was before the House a bill to build a pipeline and a large canal across Florida. The purpose was to relieve gas and oil shortage in the Eastern states. This shortage is caused mainly by submarine sinkings of ocean tankers which run from Texas and Louisiana to the Atlantic coast. The proposed pipeline and barge canal across Florida would permit the oil and gas to be brought by a route not subject to submarine attack.

The bill was defeated 121 to 85. Considering the purpose, the defeat was surprising. There were some reasons. The reasons included:

Demand that the pipeline and barge canal be considered as separate measures, each on its merit.

A feeling that the pipeline alone would be enough, without the barge canal.

The fact that the pipeline could be built in an estimated three or four months, while the barge canal would take an estimated year and a half to three years.

The fact that the pipeline could be built for an estimated $48,000,000, while the barge canal would cost nearly $100,000,000.

A feeling that a better way to use the money, and the time and the man power, would be to build the pipeline across Florida—and then use the additional money for building still more pipelines from west to east.

Ship Canal Scheme Suspected

Suspicion that the shallow, 12-foot-deep barge canal was tacked on the pipeline proposal as a first step toward digging a deep ocean-going ship channel across Florida. The latter proposal was before Congress several times preceding the war, and aroused controversy. Frequently in the debate this week sharp phrases occurred as "entering wedge for the ship channel," "sugar coating for the ship channel."

The fact that the proponents of the bill had not got unified recommendation by all the government officials and boards who have to do with the subject matters involved in the bill—those in charge of gasoline and oil, transportation, shipbuilding, man-power, allocation of materials. It was not necessarily that any of those opposed the bill; it was merely that formal recommendations of some of them had not been procured.

One reason for defeat of the bill was resentment against the parliamentary method by which the bill was placed before the House. It came under suspension of the rules, permitted no amendment, and permitted only forty minutes for debate. Had the bill come in the regular way, there would have been time for adequate debate, and proposals of amendments would have been in order. So much did the attempt at suspension of the rules weigh with members of the House, that it is tenable to suppose the bill might yet pass if it were again brought forward, this time, in the regular way.

Indorsements Essential

Rejection of a war measure, if it is a war measure, would be unfortunate. One way to avert it would be to make sure that the measure in question is, indisputably, a war measure. A way to assure this would be to have, for such a measure, the formal approval of those responsible for conducting the war, all of them. It is not enough that the measure be endorsed, as this one was, by some war agencies. There should be, before a war measure is introduced, consideration and final judgment by all the war agencies as a group. It should come as the act of a unified war authority.

And what is true of measures before Congress is true also of statements, orders and announcements issued to the public. In the past, both Congress and the public have seen statements or orders or recommendations coming from one war agency, while another war agency seemed to take a different view.

Unified judgment and action is desirable for the information and assurance of Congress and the public—and for an additional reason. We have now reached the point where we approach the bottom of the barrel of our materials, facilities and man-power.

In the beginning, it was proper enough that we should order lots of planes, lots of tanks, lots of guns, lots of ammunition, lots of ships. But at this stage, it is necessary to co-ordinate these various lots, bring them into a relation to each other which will compose the best possible war effort—and will take account of our limitations of man power and materials. We have now reached the point where we can enlarge one detail of our progress only by limiting another. To decide upon the detail to be enlarged, and the one to be limited, must be the work of our war authority—acting as a unit.

Case in Point

The proposed pipeline and barge canal across Florida is a case in point. It will consume man power and it will consume raw materials, including steel. Is this the best possible use for the narrowing margins of man power and steel that remain available? If it is, and if a unified war authority will tell us it is, then let us do it. On the other hand, if there is a more necessary use for the sea power and materials, then use them for that. If the best management of the war, to the end of assured victory, requires that the people of the eastern states get along with reduced gas and oil, that will be a relatively small discomfort, compared with the sacrifices that total war demands.

At the present time, our most pressing need is ships. In practically every other detail of our war program, we have made progress beyond what in the beginning we imagined, progress which justifies confidence in the ultimate outcome of the war. We do not need to doubt that the American genius which has accomplished the wonder of mass production in other lines, can accomplish it also in ships. But shipbuilding is the largest present demand upon whatever man power and materials we have to spare.

Strikes Continue Despite Pledges, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 3—How effective is the 100 per cent no-strike pledge given by the American Federation of Labor and the C.I.O.?

Official figures now are available which show that despite the assurances given Congress during January and February and despite the belief of the administration that in avoiding legislation restricting strikes the labor movement was responding with only minor interruptions, the nation actually experienced only a sixty-two per cent compliance with the no-strike pledge as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Thus, the total number of man-days lost in January and February, 1942, as revealed by the department of Labor shows a decrease of sixty-two per cent as compared with the same two months of 1941. The number of strikes declined only thirty-four per cent.

If the calculation is made on the basis of the number of workers involved, the decrease in January and February is only forty-eight per cent as compared with the same two months of 1941. The number of strikes declined only thirty-four per cent.

Decreases Offset

The most important change was in the frequency of strikes in particular industries. Thus in the machinery industry the number of man-days lost declined ninety-eight per cent but there was a corresponding increase in other industries. Leather and leather products, for example, suffered a large increase. Since nearly every industry contributes something to the war effort—the leather companies being called upon to produce shoes for the army in greater quantities than ever before and the textile industry being called on to make wearing apparel for military and naval use—these strikes are indirectly harmful to the war program.

There is a certain discord produced in various localities as workers on defense projects see other workers striking and getting benefits that are not given them when they forbear from using the strike weapon. The latest statistics—also from the department of Labor—show that 26.4 per cent of the workers went back to their jobs in January and February after having won substantial concessions as compared with 23.5 in the same two months a year ago. Almost sixty per cent got partial concessions as compared with 54.2 per cent a year ago, so striking seems to have been financially beneficial to the workers.

Issues Involved

As for the issues involved in the strikes, wages or hours or both accounted for 44.9 per cent of the number of workers on strike as compared with 38.2 per cent in January and February a year ago.

Union organization, strangely enough, dropped as the reason for striking from 29.6 per cent of the workers involved a year ago to 9.6 per cent in January and February of this year. Jurisdictional strikes showed an increase this year over last in the number of persons on strike. The total was nearly nine per cent of the number of workers involved.

As for the responsibility for disciplining the strikers and persuading them to obey the pledge given on their behalf to the president of the United States, the blame appears to be divided almost equally between the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. Thus out of the total number of workers on strike in January and February, 1942, namely 82,099, there were 37,157 or about 45.3 per cent among C. I. O. members and 34,245 or about 41.7 per cent among the A.F. of L. members.

Older Union Guiltier

But if the number of strikes alone is counted, the American Federation of Labor shows up to have been much more guilty of breaking the pledge in wartime than the C.I.O. Out of the total number of strikes, 153 or 50.8 per cent of them all are in A.F. of L. organizations. This is all the more surprising since the A.F. of L. boasts that it is the veteran of trade unionism in America. The C.I.O., which is a much younger organization, was responsible for 36.9 per cent of the number of strikes called, or about 111. Unaffiliated unions, rival unions, account for seventeen strikes.

It is interesting to note that strike activity increased after Pearl Harbor. This December 1941, saw only 59,022 workers out on strike at one time or another, while February 1942 saw 74,775.

Plenty for Board

The administration considers the strike situation as a whole satisfactory for there has been no comment from officials about the work stoppages. It would appear from the study of the statistics that "union security" is not what is agitating the men who do strike but demands for more wages or higher rates of pay for less hours.

The War Labor Board will, therefore, have plenty of problems to solve when it comes to wage stabilization and this may be one reason why the War Labor Board appears at times so ready, in effect, to barter concessions on "union security" for the dropping or lessening of wage demands.

ON AIR TONIGHT

Fanny Brice

Here is "Baby Snooks," Thursday evening NBC-Red network favorite. As everybody knows, "Snooks," the impish little girl of the airways, is really Fanny Brice, stage and radio actress.

"What Can I Do To Help Win the War?"

Speakers include James M. Landis, Leon Henderson, William P. Withrow and Helen Heit. An announcement said that the "town meetings for war" project was being adopted by 9,000 local defense councils as means to discuss current war problems.

The first American opera festival on MBS at 8 is to devote its hour to a presentation of Gertrude Stein's and Virgil Thomson's opera "Four Saints in Three Acts." It will be the fifth program of the seven weeks' series.

Light Comedy

The NBC network for its 10:30 open spot on Thursday nights is presenting Fay Wray in her first radio series, "Keeping Up with Rosemary," a light comedy built around the idea of a young magazine editor who wants to increase circulation. Altogether, the series will require six weeks.

Isidor Philipp, pianist, and Samuel Duskin, violinist, are to participate in a chamber music concert for CBS at 3:30. Philipp was born in 1863.

The sponsor of Fanny Brice and Frank Morgan has decided to change the commercial theme of their NBC programs at 8 from coffee to another of his products.

The address of President Manuel Quezon, of the Philippines, before the Senate at Washington at 12:30 p. m. Thursday, is announced by broadcast by the NBC and Blue networks. The program is set for half an hour.

Tribute to the late John Barrymore, who made a mark as a radio comedian in the program, is planned for the Rudy Vallee show on NBC at 10:30 p. m.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By Dean Halliday

SUBSTITUTE FOR SPINACH IN VICTORY GARDENS

New Zealand spinach is an especially good vegetable for Victory Gardens. It is economical as it can be cropped continually, therefore only a small amount of space is required for its use. Spinach does not grow well in hot weather. It tends to become tough and go to seed readily, but the New Zealand spinach will thrive in hot weather and not become tough at any time.

CIRCLE OF SOOT, LIME OR COAL ASHES

As illustrated, the succulent leaves and branch tips are used as greens. If only four to five inches are removed from the tips of the leaves as fast as they develop new growth will continue throughout the season.

New Zealand spinach has a more open growth than plain spinach. For this reason it does not collect as much sand and is easier to clean. In rich land a pack of greens can be gathered from one plant several times during the season.

Brazil is the only country on the American continent which has produced silk on a commercial scale over a long period, the department of commerce reports.

There is a radio in seven out of every ten American homes.

Miss Lola M. Cain Becomes The Bride of John Wempe

Marriage Takes Place in St. Mary's Catholic Church Here

Miss Lola Mae Cain, 607 Oldtown road, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Price Cain, Moorefield, W. Va., became the bride of John Robert Wempe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph U. Wempe, 601 Oldtown road, in a simple wedding ceremony at 8 o'clock yesterday morning in St. Mary's Catholic church, with the Rev. Lawrence J. Wempe, Sacred Heart church, Washington, D. C., officiating.

The altar was decorated in roses and tapers. Miss Mary A. Wempe and Leo Wempe, sister and brother of the bridegroom, were the attendants. Sister M. Eileen played several organ selections during the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of light blue silk with which she wore matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses and baby's breath. The maid of honor wore a dusty rose costume with matching accessories and a corsage of tulleman roses.

The bride is a graduate of Moorefield high school and is employed by the Celanese Corporation of America.

The bridegroom is a graduate of LaSalle and was employed by the Celanese Corporation of America before entering military service, June 2, 1941. He is now stationed with the One-hundred-fifteenth Division Service Department, Camp Bowie, Texas. He flew the 2000 miles from camp to Washington in ten hours and twenty minutes, and motored to Cumberland from Washington with his brother the Rev. Father Wempe.

Mrs. Cain, who has been ill improved sufficiently at the last minute for a friend to fly her from Moorefield to Mexico Farms so she could attend her daughter's wedding.

A four tier wedding cake formed the centerpiece for the bridal decorations at the wedding breakfast, which was served to approximately fifty relatives and friends at the home of the bridegroom's parents following the ceremony. A reception was held throughout the day.

Mr. Wempe has a fifteen day furlough. He and his bride are residing at 601 Oldtown road.

Two Teachers Will Be Given Farewell Party

Dinner Will Be Given This Evening at the Shrine Club

A farewell party will be given in honor of Mrs. Charles Collett Davenport and Miss Irene Williams at 6 o'clock this evening at the All Ghan Shrine Country Club, by a group of their friends.

Mrs. Davenport, the former Miss Christine Porter, will leave at the completion of the school year for Philadelphia, where Mr. Davenport is employed as electrical engineer with the Westinghouse Electric company.

Miss Williams will return to Lewiston, Idaho. She and Miss Nan Livingston have been the exchange teachers the past school year.

Spring flowers will be used in the table decorations. Following the dinner, Miss Margaret S. Ingles will read original verses about each of the guests, games and stunts will complete the program.

Other guests will be Miss Isabelle Screen, Miss Gertrude Ranch, Miss Grace Swanson, Miss Naomi Teter, Mrs. Mary Lee Higgins, Miss Alice Filler, Miss Twila R. Brotemarkle, Mrs. Carolyn C. Dunlap, Miss Irene Lam, Mrs. Norma Epps and Miss Mary McFarland.

Marriage Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Norris, Long, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Nancy Alma Norris, to Pvt. John Charles Blocker, Fort Sheridan, Ill. The ceremony was performed May 13, in Akron, O.

Mrs. Blocker is residing with her parents after spending three weeks in Akron, visiting Mrs. Gertrude Robbins, sister of the bridegroom.

Mission Society Members To Assist In Vacation School

Members of the Women's Mission Society of the First Baptist church will assist at the Vacation Bible school, to be held at the church, June 17 to July 3, under the direction of Mrs. E. W. Saylor. The plans were made at the meeting of the society Tuesday evening at the church.

The feature of the evening was the talk given by Mrs. John I. Vandegrift on the Southern Baptist convention held last month in San Antonio, Texas. Besides telling of the "Women's work" and the general association, Mrs. Vandegrift related numerous personal incidents.

Margaret Morrissey Becomes the Bride Of Bernard Hill

Ceremony Is Performed In Rectory of St. Patrick's Catholic Church

The marriage of Miss Margaret Morrissey to Bernard Hill, son of Mrs. Martin J. Regan, 619 Shriver avenue, has been announced by the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morrissey, 506 North Centre street.

The ceremony was performed at 8 p. m. in the rectory of St. Patrick's Catholic church, with the Rev. Charles W. Bogan officiating. Miss Dorothy Spiker was maid of honor and Francis Welschmiller, best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, with approximately fifty relatives and friends attending.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill will reside at 306 Decatur street.

Maryland Avenue Pupils Will Give Play at School

The first grade pupils of Maryland avenue school will present a play, "Snow White Visits the Seven Dwarfs," and give dances and choral readings this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock in the school auditorium at the final meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the present school term.

Following the program which will include a talk by Miss Winifred Green, supervisor of elementary schools, a party will be held for children who will enter school next fall. Parents of students will be guests.

LaVale Mothers Club Will Meet Today

Mrs. Thomas K. Burk will be hostess to approximately thirty members of the Mothers Club of LaVale today at her home in LaVale. A picnic meeting will conclude the club activities for the season. Mrs. Harry Smith, Mrs. H. S. Everline and Mrs. Ralph Bowers are the committee in charge of arrangements.

Bridge Club Meets

Mrs. Mark Lazarus entertained members of her bridge club yesterday afternoon at her home, 535 Washington street. Members playing were Mrs. Morton W. Peskin, Mrs. Harry G. Beneman, Mrs. Irving Millerson, Mrs. George Kline, Mrs. Ben Kamens, Mrs. Allan T. Hirsch and Mrs. Lester Millerson.

Mrs. Isaac Ottensheimer, Baltimore, was a guest.

Miss Mary Lible Is Honored at Home of Miss Clara Malin

A miscellaneous shower was given by Miss Clara Lucille Malin, Miss Ruth Denny and Miss Evelyn Beckman in honor of Miss Mary-Margaret Lible last evening at Miss Malin's home, 814 Greene street. Miss Lible is bride-elect of Ralph Hamner.

Numerous bouquets of pink roses decorated the home and the pink and white color scheme was carried out in the shower table decorations. A bridal cake and pink roses were used in the supper table decorations and ice cream molded in the shape of hearts was served.

Other guests included Mrs. Howard Zarger, Mrs. George Berry, Mrs. Vincent Miller, Mrs. John Wilkinson, Mrs. Dorothy Helbert, Mrs. LeRoy Wagner, Mrs. Edward Lible, Mrs. G. Frank Malin, Miss Margaret Flurshutz, Miss Louise Boor, Miss Ruth Barry, Miss Alda Bishop, Miss Margaret Wright and Miss Josephine McVicker. Prizes at cards were awarded to Mrs. Zarger, Mrs. Flurshutz and Miss McVicker.

Mrs. Wilkinson, 313 Greene street, entertained with a dinner in honor of Miss Lible Tuesday evening at the All Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Besides a bridal gift Mrs. Wilkinson presented a corsage of orchids to the bride-elect and a corsage of gardenias to each of the other guests.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

A CORNER drug store might not seem like a very good place for a rendezvous, especially since an important one as this, but at least the small booth where Steena waited for Tommy was secluded and private. She imagined she would need privacy and seclusion, for she was afraid she might not have an easy time in getting Tommy to agree to the proposition she was going to present to him. So far Tommy had left everything to her, but she would have to have his cooperation in this.

He would have to give it to her, she resolved, even if she had to hit him over the head to make him cooperate. She knew that Tommy was beginning to be sick of their bargain. She knew, too, that he was not the sort to stand, for long, this being used for a foil—as Marg would have phrased it. He had already broken over in sending Tibby those violets, but Steena would see to it that he did not break over again.

Young Doctor Dare was on time. He arrived on the dot of 8 o'clock. He arrived looking eager and yet rather grim. The eagerness was due to what Steena had said over the phone, that she had something to tell him about Tibby, something he wanted to hear. The grimness came from his determination to put an end to this silly campaign that he somehow—he could not believe of his own free will—had got involved in. It was silly business, this sneaking around to meet Steena in a corner drug store when what he wanted to do was to go straight to Tibby and have everything out and over with.

He should have realized by now that Steena's determination matched—and rather out-did—his. It was stamped on her lovely face now, in the brightness of her green eyes, the set of her beautiful, crimson mouth.

"I might as well come right to the point," she said, after they each had ordered a soft drink as a reasonable excuse for occupying the booth. "The reason I asked you to come out and meet me here, I want to announce our engagement, Tommy. I want it to be in the papers tomorrow—in black and white." That would be tangible proof indeed for Wayne Courtwright, and a soothing salve for Steena's wounded pride.

Had she actually hit Tommy over his nice blond head, he could not have looked more stunned. His mouth fell open, he stared at her as if he thought she had suddenly gone crazy, all the eagerness left his blue eyes.

"Our engagement!" he finally blurted out. "But we aren't engaged. In the papers?" Good heavens—that would never do!" "Of course we aren't engaged." Men were so dumb, Steena decided. They were supposed to have the brains. "But we can pretend we are, can't we, in order to end this campaign once and for all?"

"End it!" That was what he wanted to do all right, but he could not see that this would help. It would only make him more involved than ever, make things more difficult to explain to Tibby. "Certainly it will end it," Steena said, her green eyes narrowing. She had been afraid Tommy might prove difficult. She should have gone ahead and given the announcement to the papers herself, but she had been afraid to go quite that far without telling him. "That's the plan I spoke of," she told Tommy. "It's the only way to bring Wayne and Tibby to their senses. If they both think we are going to marry someone else—each other—they will do something about it."

She wished she were as certain of that as she sounded. What if Wayne did not do a thing? What if he did not care if she married someone else?

No doubt Tommy was thinking the same thing. He said, "It sounds like a goofy idea to me, like carrying things a bit too far." What if he had to go ahead and marry Steena? Good Lord! This was worse than getting involved. It looked to him almost like a trap.

Steena said, "You promised to leave everything up to me. I think you'll have to admit I've managed very well so far. You admitted Tibby acted differently toward you the last time. That proves I know what I'm doing, if you'd only leave everything up to me."

"You said you had something to tell me about Tibby," Tommy reminded. He took a huge gulp of his drink; he felt he needed it, for he had a sneaking feeling that he was trapped already. You couldn't argue with a woman. You couldn't put down your foot and refuse to go on with your part of a bad bargain, not when the woman would not let you get out of it, but kept dragging you farther and farther on in. He wished he never had been such a sap as to agree to let Steena run this campaign. Her way was not a man's way of doing things.

"I HAVE something to tell you," Steena took a long slow sip of her cool drink. "I hinted to Tibby, just to see if this plan that you term goofy might be feasible, that we might possibly become engaged. It was her reaction that made me see it was the very best thing we could possibly do." That was true, in a way. Of course, the gift, with its accompanying note from Wayne, had been a deciding factor, too. "What was her reaction?" Tommy wanted to know. He did not like the idea of Steena's even hinting to Tibby, but that was what he meant by the way a woman handled things.

"I could see that it upset her," Steena said. "Considerably. I could see, Tommy, that she cares for you, even though she may not realize it yet herself."

That was the big news that was supposed to be what he wanted to hear, but it did not seem to cheer Tommy up very much. "A lot of good that does me," he said. He wanted something much more tangible, something much more effective and conclusive than Steena's suppositions. It seemed to him she was too upset, where he was concerned, as it was.

"It will," Steena prophesied. "You have to be patient. You have to wait for the final results. Also you must remember that I am in this too, not just you and Tibby. You promised to help me out with Wayne. He has GOT to think that I am going to marry someone else."

This was the main issue, the only arrow left. If it failed in its mark, then the whole campaign was a flop. Steena would have to give up, but she would not give up without this last blitz.

"I still don't like the idea," Tommy protested. He liked it less and less the more he thought about it. Tibby would never understand, he felt sure, his getting engaged, even for her special benefit, to another girl, and so soon after he had proposed to her.

"You don't have to like it," Steena sounded cross. "All you have to do is see if it won't work. The reason I asked you to meet me here is that I want to phone the papers before 9 o'clock, so the announcement will be in the morning editions. It's nearly nine now—two minutes of, so I think I'd better do it right away." She pushed back her emptied glass to get up.

Tommy pushed his aside, too. It collided with something, fell over, rolled onto the floor and broke. He felt as if the broken glass represented himself. "Okay," he said, all grimness now, the eagerness having been wiped out. "But this IS the last stand. If it doesn't bring results, you'll have to release me from my part of the bargain, Steena." From the engagement, too, he should have added. What if she wouldn't let him get out of that? What if he had to marry the girl? Then he WOULD be sunk.

He should have had that plainly understood before it was too late, but Steena already had left the booth. She was in the telephone booth now, calling up the papers so that the morning editions would carry a notice of the engagement of Steena Winters to Dr. Thomas Dare—in black and white.

Staff Officers Inspect Local Guard Companies

Blood Types of All Guardsmen Are Taken and Classified

Staff officers of the Eighth Battalion, Maryland State Guard, visited here last night and made an informal inspection of officers and men of Company C and Company D, Cumberland's two guard units.

Blood types were taken of all the guardsmen and each man was classified and informed of his particular type. Records were set up on individual blood types for each company as well as for battalion headquarters, so that men can be given blood transfusions or can give blood transfusions if the occasion arises.

Lt. Col. William Preston Lane of Hagerstown, commander of the battalion, addressed the two units and complimented them upon the progress they have made since their induction into state service. He stated that the entire Eighth Battalion was given a high rating in the federal inspection several weeks ago, and the two local companies were commended for appearance, ability and advancement in training.

Col. Lane congratulated the two companies upon their spirit and patriotism. He said that the enlisted men of the two companies here are a credit to the state and to the state guard. "I am proud to be the commander of a battalion that contains such men and companies as those in Cumberland," he said.

Other officers who accompanied Col. Lane to Cumberland are Maj. W. Howard Yeager, Medical Corps, battalion surgeon; Lieut. Victor D. Miller, Jr., adjutant; and Capt. J. V. Jamison, III, executive officer.

Centre Street Pupils To Present Festival

A "Music Festival" will be presented by the pupils of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of the Centre Street school at 7:30 o'clock this evening at the school.

Following the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the audience the Glee club will sing, "Sing When You Are Happy." Other numbers by the Glee club will be "Land of Hope and Glory" and "Springtime." Folk dances, a Kinderpolka and "In Wooden Shoes" will be presented by the pupils of the fourth grade. The fifth and sixth grades will present other folk dances, "Cesogary," "Gustave Shost," "Klap dances" and "Blekling."

The "Singing Waltz," "Lullaby," "Marines Hymn," "Remember Pearl Harbor," and the "Gale Song" will be played by the Glee club. Music awards will be presented by Miss Mabel Myers. The program will close with the group singing of "God Bless America."

Party Is Given For Miss Beck

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Vogtman, Ridgeley, W. Va., entertained in honor of their niece, Miss Mary Evelyn Beck, on her eighteenth birthday, Monday evening.

Guests included Miss Rose Drumm, Miss Martha Lee Wallace, Miss Lucille Turano, Miss Mary Aaron, Miss Ruth Barrett, Miss Catherine Blake, Miss Bernadine Boyle, Miss Andee Broome, Miss Madeline Green, Miss Jeanne Robinson, Robert Brown, Joseph Devitt, James Kastner, Robert Mackert, Francis Mullen, Edward McMahon, Thomas McMahon, Eugene Henry, Philip Natalie, Ronald Palmer, Donald Palmer, Robert Seefeld, John Small, Francis Wickenmiller, William Hunt, Thomas McGeady, James Beightol, William LaNave, George Hughes, John Morrissey, Benjamin Hotchkiss, James Laffey, Clark Dixon, Virginia Lee Peck and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Beck.

With Our Boys In the Service

Corp. Charles Leith, Union street, is home on leave from New Orleans, La., where he is assigned as a gunner on an Army Flying Fortress. This is Corp. Leith's first trip home since he enlisted in April, 1941.

Corp. Leith is a former star athlete of Fort Hill high school and about two years ago saved the life of a two-year-old child who had fallen into a storm sewer at the corner of Maryland avenue and Broadway.

Lieut. Mary E. Moody, daughter of Mrs. William Moody, 18 Frost avenue, Frostburg, who is serving in the United States Army Nursing Corps, has called for an undisclosed destination with the nurses' foreign service, her mother was informed recently.

Aviation Cadet J. Timothy Newlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Newlin, 416 Arch street, has been transferred from the 1350th Service Unit, Fort George G. Meade, to Miami Beach, Fla., where he will start his training. He was formerly a sergeant in Company G, Fort Meade.

Pvt. Edgar Fannon, son of Michael Fannon and Pvt. Cletus Brailer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brailer, Mount Savage, who enlisted several weeks ago are stationed at Miami, Florida.

Word has been received that John W. Houck, Jr., grandson of Henry A. Houck, 485 Williams street, having completed his flying studies has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps, and received his "wings" at that field as an instructor. Lieutenant Houck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Houck, Sr., of Detroit, formerly of Cumberland.

Four men were sent to the Baltimore induction station yesterday by the local Navy recruiting station. They are Charles A. Jewell, 761 Maryland avenue; Lewis V. Underdonk, 17 South Centre street; Charles W. Robertson, Midland; and Carlton R. Beckman, 421 Holland street.

Two men joined the U. S. Army here yesterday. Robert E. Miller, RFD 2, assigned to the Air Corps, and Roy E. Powell, Paw Paw, W. Va.

Cadet James H. Evans, Frostburg, was recently graduated from a basic training class at Merced Army Flying School, Merced, Cal.

Mrs. Wallace H. McGill, 722 Elm street, was advised that her husband arrived in Honolulu. He will work as a carpenter in the Pearl Harbor navy yard. He left Cumberland May 5.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ott, Piedmont, received a telegram notifying them that their son, Private Robert Ott, had arrived in Australia.

Pvt. Nial P. Cook of Hyndman, formerly employed at Baltimore, is slowly recovering from a two weeks' illness of pneumonia at Fort Bragg, N. C.

A recent draftee under local board No. 2, Carl H. Buell, 312 Decatur street, is stationed at the Army Air Base, Wilmington, Del., where he is a member of the Fifty-second Fighter Group, Second Squadron.

Cumberland Pilots Club Re-elects Henley President

Roy Henley was re-elected president of the Cumberland Pilots Club last night at a meeting held at the Red Men's hall, Bedford street.

Other officers named were Ewald Ruhl, re-elected vice president; L. G. Trimmer, treasurer; George Ruhl, secretary, and W. L. Kline, maintenance officer. Members of the Pilots Club also discussed various ways in which to make the Air Show to be held Sunday, June 7 a success.

Virgil Parker was elected A. and E. mechanic.

Local Guard Will Train August 2-9 At Camp Ritchie

Field Training Will Be Given by Regular Army Officers

A period of summer field training for members of the state guard companies in Western Maryland will be held at Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Md., the week of August 2 to August 9. Lt. Col. William Preston Lane said last night, after he made an inspection of the two local guard units.

That particular week, Col. Lane explained, has been set aside for use of the Eighth battalion, which includes companies of Hagerstown and Cumberland. A program of field training will be arranged, and instructors from the regular army and perhaps British and Canadian officers who have been in active service in the present conflict will be assigned, Col. Lane explained.

Transportation, sustenance and equipment will be provided for the men who participate, and every available man in each company is urged to take the training course. It was indicated that the majority of the men in both Company C and Company D may attend.

Col. Lane stressed the need for field training, especially for the non-commissioned officers, and added that the successful operation and striking power of each unit, depends largely upon the knowledge, ability and training qualifications of the non-commissioned officers and the men.

New Books Arrive At Local Library

'Washington Is Like That,' by Kiplinger, Is among Latest Volumes

Recent additions to the Cumberland Free Public Library include the fascinating new "Washington Is Like That," the discerning picture of Washington in war time, written by W. M. Kiplinger, editor of the famous "Kiplinger Washington Letters."

Another book Cumberlanders are enjoying is "The Road We are Traveling—1914-1942," by Stuart Chase. This small volume is a forecast of post war economic conditions and is the first of six books on post war planning.

"Forward the Nation," by Donald Peattie, is a narrative of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Far more interesting, it is also far more informative than the usual text book account. It gives a beautiful description of Sacajawea, the Shoshone Indian girl, who guided the expedition. The sixth edition of "Motor's Factory Shop Manual" is also available at the local library. This is a profusely illustrated manual of repair procedure.

Other noteworthy additions include: "Wings on My Feet," the career of Sonja Henie, internationally famous ice skater.

"Remember Pearl Harbor," by Blake Clark.

"George Craghan and the Westward Movement 1741-1782," by Albert T. Volwiler—a new volume in the Old Northwest historical series.

"High Wide and Frightened," a woman pilot's story, by Louise Thaden.

"Radio Dramatics," by Ruth Carmen.

Miss S. B. Campbell Dies

Miss Sarah Blair Campbell, 68, Catonsville, died yesterday in a Baltimore hospital. Her body will arrive here Friday for interment in Rose Hill cemetery with the Rev. Dr. William A. Ekenberger officiating at services at the grave.

Safety Movie Will Be Shown Tonight At Local Hotel

The safety movie "Cavalade of Wheels" will be shown tonight at the Fort Cumberland hotel by the Maryland Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Doll Derr Salm, who produced the film, will ride an oldtime bicycle from the rear of the News-Times building up Baltimore street to Centre and then to city hall plaza and down Liberty street to the hotel where the first showing is scheduled for 7:45 p. m.

The movie is an entertainment, as well as a review of all kinds of wheel transportation, and runs about forty-five minutes.

Free admission cards may be obtained at the News-Times office, South Mechanic street, or at the hotel.

Pallbearers Named For Keller Rites

Funeral services for Miss Martha Resaca Keller, 74, who died Tuesday morning at her home, 420 South Cedar street, will be held this afternoon in the Holy Cross Episcopal church, with the Rev. Louis H. Ewald, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Rose Hill cemetery.

The honorary pallbearers will be Alban C. Thompson, James M. Conway, Somerville Nicholson, W. Carl Richards, James E. Keech and Michael D. Reinhart. Active pallbearers will be Paul M. Fletcher, Edward Lewis, Paul Gilme, Howard Brinkman, Arthur Weber and William Peabody.

Miss Keller operated a grocery store on Virginia avenue for many years and was active in civic affairs.

Rites Are Held For Mrs. Jammer

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma May Jammer, widow of Conrad Jammer, were held yesterday afternoon at her late home, 230 Columbia street, with the Rev. Louis B. Browne, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Frostburg, officiating. Entombment was in the Suter mausoleum, Philos cemetery, Westport.

Pallbearers were Charles A. Piper, Wyant C. Messman, William Willson, P. E. Berry, William J. Edwards and Charles G. Holzshu.

Dee Ann Hinkle Rites Are Held Here

Funeral services for Dee Ann Hinkle, infant daughter of Robert and Dorothy Sweigert Hinkle, 410 York place, were held yesterday afternoon in Trinity Methodist church with the Rev. S. R. Neel officiating. Interment was in Hillcrest burial park.

Pallbearers were William Breakiron, Roy Closterman and Merle Hinkle. Flower girls were Shirley Hinkle, Jean Barnhart, Greta Hinkle, Eva Leighty, Gene Richter and Betty Hare.

Miss Martha Walker Dies

Miss Martha Jane Walker, 79, 134 Frederick street, died at 6 p. m. yesterday at her home. A native of Cumberland, she was a daughter of the late David and Elizabeth Higgins Walker.

Miss Walker is survived by a number of nieces and nephews and was a sister of the late David Walker, once sheriff of Allegany county. She was a member of Colfax Rebekah lodge, No. 1, I. O. O. F.

Funeral services will be held Friday in Stein's chapel with the Rev. David C. Clark, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church, officiating.

Lepley Rites Are Held

Rites for Franklin Lee Lepley, 434 Race street, were held yesterday afternoon at his home with services in charge of the Gospel hall. Interment was in Hillcrest burial park.

Pallbearers were A. G. Meyers, G. R. Cramer, J. W. Barnhart, Charles Gordon, Floyd Twigg and L. C. Jacobs.

Celanese Corporation Would Drop Present Financing Plan

The Celanese Corporation of America has filed a request with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Philadelphia to withdraw its registration statement covering $7,522,000 convertible three and one-half per cent debentures, common stock and subscription warrant evidencing rights to subscribe to the debentures.

The application for withdrawal states that the company has abandoned plans for the proposed public financing and has no intention at present of making a public offering of the securities covered in the registration statement.

Esso Marketers Will Meet Tonight

F. Rye Washington, of Washington, D. C., will address the Esso Marketers, on "Synthetic Rubber," at the general get-together dinner to be held at 7 o'clock this evening at the All Glean Shrine Country Club.

R. B. Macbeth will be the toastmaster. Other out-of-town guests will include W. H. Evans, Baltimore, division manager; E. S. Digs, Baltimore and R. R. McCoy, Hagerstown.

Approximately 250 guests are expected to attend.

Three Births Reported In Allegany Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Patton, 603 North Centre street, announce the birth of a son last night in Allegany hospital.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. James E. Moffett, 100 Mullan street, yesterday morning in Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Campbell,

WPB MAKES PLANS TO SAFEGUARD WAR MATERIALS

The War Production Board regional office has moved to safeguard the supply of materials and equipment critical to the war effort in the region covering Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey.

In announcing the appointment of Howard S. Candee of Brandon, Vermont, as manager of the regional investigation division, Orville H. Bullitt, regional director of the WPB, said the division was being greatly expanded to provide a thorough, fast check on violations of priorities.

The investigation division will initiate examination on its own account in addition to checking complaints of alleged violations which reach it," Mr. Bullitt said.

"The purpose of the investigation division will be two fold; first, to prevent 'Black Market' traffic in critical commodities and machinery; second, to conserve for the war effort and essential purposes existing stocks of scarce materials restricted by priorities.

"The Regional Division has investigatory functions only," Mr. Bullitt continued. "Because we are so close to the Capitol, the War Production Board in Washington will proceed against priority violators."

"Punitive actions range from confiscation of excess stocks of scarce materials and their return to more useful channels, refusal of further supplies, and the outright suspension of business operations, to, in certain instances, prison terms and jail sentences."

Headquarters of the regional investigation division will be in Philadelphia. Branch offices are in operation in Baltimore and Richmond.

PENTECOSTAL HOLINESS CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN LONA CONING

LONA CONING, June 3.—Detailed arrangements for the third annual session of the Maryland Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness church, which will convene in Lonaconing Friday are complete, the Rev. George A. Jeffery, pastor, announced today.

The meeting will open with a devotional service on Friday evening with Bishop Dan T. Muse, Oakland, delivering the sermon. The business session will begin Saturday morning when delegates from New Jersey, District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia are expected to attend.

Saturday evening an evangelistic service will be conducted by the P. H. Youth Societies. The Rev. H. Valentine, Dundalk, Md., who heads the young peoples division will be in charge.

The Rev. Harold A. Probst, pastor of the Bethel Gospel Tabernacle, Cumberland, was elected superintendent of the Maryland conference at its second session last year in Washington. Between fifteen and twenty churches will be represented at the conference.

Magistrate O. H. Bruce Will Deliver Memorial Address in Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va., June 3.—Trial Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., will deliver the memorial address Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the annual memorial services of the Keyser Lodge of Moose.

The invocation will be given by the pastor of the United Brethren church and the pastor of the Catholic church will give the benediction. Five members of the lodge, who died in the past year, will be eulogized during the services.

Roads Commission Oils Highway East of City

The Maryland State Roads Commission is now engaged in oiling a six-mile stretch of Route 40, West of Hancock, and the work will be carried into Allegany county to the top of Green Ridge. It was announced yesterday by Leo T. Diney, district engineer.

After the work east of Cumberland is completed, Route 40 west of Frostburg will be oiled, Diney said.

Panel Truck Is Damaged by Fire

A panel body delivery truck owned by Joseph Reinhart, Jr., was badly damaged by fire at 9:23 o'clock last night in the 400 block of Park street.

Firemen from Engine company No. 3, who were summoned to the fire, said it was caused by a short circuit and did considerable damage to the motor and under the floorboards.

3 out of every 5 bombs dropped on Axis targets are made possible by Esso research

Basic ingredient of the high explosive TNT is toluol. In the last war, toluol came from coal tar. For this war, the United Nations need many times as much as the coal tar industry can produce. Fortunately, in 1935 Esso research workers, in cooperation with the U. S. Army, found a way to make toluol synthetically from petroleum. Construction of a large commercial plant for the Army Ordnance Department was completed in October, 1941. This plant more than doubled America's TNT output. This process was also shared with other refiners, so that 3 out of 5 bombs will be filled with war TNT derived from ESSO-developed toluol.

Concentrated Army Ration for Combat Troops Perfected, Doctor Is Informed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Some months ago I spoke of the concentrated rations with which the army is experimenting for soldiers in the field. This is the consummation of an old dream. One of the elements in slowing up a military attack is that the fighting units have to wait for the food wagon. They have to pause in their forward movement until the supply kitchen comes up in order to give them enough energy to carry on.

As far back as the Civil War the quartermaster corps began to experiment with concentrated rations which could be put in a small package and made light enough for the soldier to carry in his marching kit. During World War I this was not a very pressing problem because the armies and trenches were pretty well stabilized, but the present war of movement has made it highly desirable to have some such ration.

Concentrated Rations
It has not been possible either in previous years, to construct such a ration scientifically because it has been within the last ten years that we have realized the highly important part that the vitamins play in nutrition and a concentrated ration is naturally made up of processed foods which do not contain any vitamin, unless they are added deliberately.

Now, however, with our knowledge of synthetic chemistry we can make crystalline vitamins and add them to processed food so that it takes on the qualities of natural food. I am informed that these concentrated rations are now perfected and available for combat troops.

The concentrated army ration is made in two forms, one is a small package about two by three inches which is known as United States Army Ration D. This contains a lump of food made up of chocolate, sugar, flour, milk, vanilla and vitamin B1, concentrate. It can be crumbled up and dissolved in water and furnishes about 1800 calories.

Soup by the Yard?

The use of dried foods is a new development which has been made possible by technical advances and since it is probable that the United States will have to feed the world for the next fifty years and we cannot afford to transport water, you may get in the habit of buying your soup by the yard.

There are two other forms of United States Army Field Rations—K and C—both of them somewhat more elaborate and having a higher caloric content and acting more like food than ration D. Ration K is divided into breakfast, dinner and supper units and has pork, graham crackers, coffee, sugar, malted milk, dextrose tablets for quick energy and also chewing gum.

A great deal of ingenuity has gone into the making of these rations such as, for instance, the production of butter that will not melt at body temperature. So far as I can see, they are entirely scientific and contain a full ration of food. The only fault that might be found with them is that they possibly are not as filling as regular food, but for a three or four-day stretch, this is not seriously inconvenient.

Questions and Answers

B. P.—Is being left-handed inherited or just a habit?

Answer: Very little is known about the causes of left-handedness. It is probably neither inherited nor a habit. The cells of the body on the right side lie on the surface of the left brain. In many people this left brain is dominant. In left-handed people, on the contrary, the right side of the brain is dominant.

Children Can Be Taught To Avoid Dangers in Home

Parents Cautioned Not To Leave Dangerous Objects Around

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

A good many little children swallow foreign objects. Among them are pins. No matter how careful a parent is a child may find some dangerous things.

The first time you see him picking up an object don't yell at him. Be calm. Quietly ask him to give it to you and approve him warmly with a smiling "Thank you" as he does. A young child likes to push small things through cracks and holes. Cut a slit in a tin coffee can and persuade him to put small foreign objects into it. He may go searching for long periods of time to find things, just for the pleasure of putting them into the can or of giving them to you to earn your smile. You can also teach him to bring everything not his own to you.

Objects in the Mouth

If the child is found with something in his mouth, don't get excited. Very gently remove it, avoiding, if possible, any resistance. Never snatch a forbidden thing from the child's grasp. Persuade him to hand it to you or, if necessary, give him something else attractive and slowly spirit away the dangerous thing as he relaxes his grasp. Never even suggest punishment in such instances.

If, for example, the toddler has a sharp stick or pointed scissors, and you force them from him once, next time he sees you coming to seize them he will almost surely run away with them. Then what a tragedy if he should fall upon the piercing, cutting thing. Teach him early to carry all sharp-pointed things pointed downward, and until he is ready to be fairly safe with them keep them from his reach.

Punish to Avoid Danger

If he has climbed to a dangerous place, be on your guard. If you shout at him or hasten to seize him, he may fall. Find safe places for him to climb very early.

Let him learn early never to climb to the medicine chest, nor to reach for the things above him, as those on the kitchen sink or table. Teach him to avoid the gas jet and the open fire.

The first time he touches the gas jet or reaches for objects above him in the kitchen, give him immediate pain—preferably a spank—saying "no" just once. Be on hand always when he is exposed to those things so he never can repeat without feeling pain. There must be no exceptions if you wish to get quick and permanent results.

Now for yourself. Never have medicines nor dangerous objects around where the child can reach them. Don't leave them about at any time.

Beatrice Fairfax Says That Love Is Like a Flame

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed By King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"It's a lot more thrilling to find out new things about one man than to find out the same old thing about a succession of men," said one of my happily married young friends. I've thought often of the wisdom of her discovery.

It came back to me again a day or two ago when I received the following letter from a young lady who signed herself "Wondering":

"I'm 21 years of age, have a good position, and have been going steady with a young man, 23, for about eighteen months," the letter states. "We've always had good times—hiking on Sundays, going to dances, discussing good books; we even like to sit at home and listen to the radio."

Drafted by Army

"He has just been drafted and wants me to marry him before he goes into the army. But I'm wondering if I really want to marry now, or if I want to marry him at all. He has a good job, which he can have back when he returns. But would I be missing real romance with more romantic men? My romance is nothing like what you read about or see in the movies, when he and I are together. It's comfortable and dear, BUT—What do you advise?" concludes "Wondering."

This young lady is asking me to do what the learned haven't succeeded in doing to date—to say something authoritative and final about the nature of sex attraction and love. She has observed, though I guess more in the movies and in highly seasoned novels than in life, that the attraction men and women have for each other is sometimes very flaming, very exciting. Compared with that, her own affair seems tepid, though "comfortable and dear," as she says. She doesn't know which to choose—the satisfactions of companionship or those of stirring romance.

Miss Fairfax's Advice

My advice is to choose companionship—companionship plus. Most certainly, physical attraction without congenial tastes will never see you through; the higher the flame, the more swiftly gone. And when one flaming experience dies down, if there isn't companionship, friendship, affection left—if passion, in short, has not kindled a lasting fire on the hearth—what next? The same thing over again? And again? It sounds a bit revolting to the fastidious mind, and, oh, how boring!

To repeat again what my wise young friend said: "It's a lot more thrilling to find out a lot of new things about one man than to find out the same old thing about a succession of men."

She Would Join Up

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Several of my friends and I are quite anxious to join the Army or Navy as dietitians. We are taking a course now, covering a year's study, and will graduate in August. Will you inform us whether this is sufficient training to enter the service, or do they require a full college course?

J. R.

The War Department informs me that they are in great need of dietitians and will be glad to enlist your services. Go to the nearest Red Cross headquarters, or get application blanks from your postmaster to take the Civil Service examination.

Wife Objects

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Before I married, I belonged to a card club and we met at each other's homes once a week. After playing we had light refreshments. We always had a very jolly time.

I married a nice, capable woman and have managed to remain loving and faithful, though she sometimes drives me to the verge of distraction. I thought I'd like to show the boys what a perfect wife would do in the way of a little supper.

Well, it came my turn to entertain, but my wife wouldn't fix the supper, and she raised Cain all over the place about cigarette ashes on the rugs, etc. So the next time it was my turn, I rented a private room in a good restaurant, and we played cards there and had the restaurant serve us a light supper. Then she fussed because it was so late when I returned home.

What am I going to do now? Sometimes I wish I had married a comfortable slattern.

DISTRACTED HUSBAND.

Why not tell the lady, when it's your time to entertain the card club, that you intend to throw a party, and let her make the best of it? It's ridiculous for a man not to be able to receive his friends in his own home. Have some sandwiches made up at a good restaurant and buy your drinks and keep them in the refrigerator until ready to serve them.

He Writes Another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For two years I went steady with a young man of 22 years. Three months ago he was drafted into the Army. He used to come to see me over the weekends when he was home, but although he never told me he loved me, I thought some day we would get married.

He hasn't been writing regularly lately, and the last two times he came home, I just saw him for a few minutes. Now I've found out that he's corresponding with another girl, and goes to see her every weekend. She lives in a neighboring city. I'm acquainted with the girl, and she always made me think she didn't care anything at all about him. Shall I write and tell him I'm through with him?

CAROL

If you're not engaged to the young soldier and he has never told you he loves you, how can you write him that you're through with him? I'm afraid you've let an attack of jealousy run away with your better judgment. That's always a mistake.

Go on being pleasant to the young man when you see him; act as if nothing had happened. If the other girl doesn't care anything about him, everything may be all right with you again in the near future. Go out with other boys and enjoy yourself. Don't worry about this one young man.

Draft Deferment

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My summons to report for duty in the Army has been received, and I would like to get a deferment long enough to pay hospital bills for my mother, who must undergo an operation. My father is unable to work because of disability.

My sister helps all she can, but a position which I have just succeeded in obtaining will give me a good salary and enable me to help out at home. Please tell me where I must apply for this deferment.

DRAFTEE

You must take up this matter with your Draft Board. My suggestion would be that your sister try to get the position which you succeeded in getting, as many firms are especially lenient in such a case as yours.

A Woman Hater

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very fond of a young man who has always considered himself a woman-hater, and who has never paid much attention to me. I used to be in some of his classes in high school, and he always pretended he had some interest in me. Now he has enlisted in the Army and is still in training. He comes home to see his family occasionally, and calls me up or makes a date. But he feels he must keep up his reputation as a woman hater and seems to be proud of that. He's 22 years old. I want to make him overcome this, and would like to win his affection. But how?

M.

It's more than likely that nature has already taken this young man in hand, and that he's less of a woman-hater than he pretends to be. As a rule, when these young lads protest too much, it's usually a case of camouflage. He probably likes you; so don't hurry him, and he'll get over hating all women.

Shadows are in reality, when the sun is shining, the most conspicuous thing in a landscape, next to the highest lights.—RUSKIN

Automobile Club Favors Turning Off Unneeded Traffic Lights

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 3 (AP)—The Southern West Virginia Automobile Club declared today that turning off thousands of unneeded traffic signals would save both rubber and gasoline and went on record favoring such a step by municipalities.

M. S. Aldrich, president, said that "before the emergency, unwarranted traffic lights were primarily a cause of annoyance and a means of retarding the flow of already congested traffic. Today, however, every stop caused by a red light means wastage of rubber and gasoline."

Allegany-Garrett Sportsmen To Hold Rally Tuesday, July 7

Frank L. Bentz Will Be Invited To Deliver Talk

Affair Will Be Held in Frostburg for Business Men and Sportsmen

FROSTBURG, June 3.—Following the monthly business meeting last evening, the Allegany-Garrett County Sportsmen's Association decided to sponsor a rally for business men and sportsmen here Tuesday, July 7. Frank L. Bentz, chief clerk of the Game and Inland Fish Commission of Maryland will be invited as the guest speaker.

Frostburg Rotary Club members will be invited to attend the meeting as guests of the sportsmen's association.

During the business session William Stewart was elected treasurer to succeed J. Preston Martin, who moved to Hagerstown. Before his departure, Monday, Martin was presented with a gift by members of the association.

The meeting was attended by Francis Ruge, deputy game warden, who announced that the bass season would open July 1. The secretary, R. H. Lancaster, was instructed to write a letter of condolence to Joseph Mink, regional game warden, whose mother died during the past week.

Mink has attended nearly all the meetings of the local group and is highly regarded by the members.

The association received sixteen applications for the "minute men" company which it is sponsoring. Work of soliciting members for the company will be continued until the full strength of fifty is reached.

Orders Streets Repaired

Street Commissioner Marshall Skidmore has ordered black top to be placed on sections of Center and Main streets, and if sufficient material is available to resurface the section of Welsh hill within the corporate limits.

The street department, under Skidmore's direction, completed repairs during the past month on Main's lane, Frost avenue, extended and Mechanic street, extended.

Skidmore said that in order to comply with a city ordinance, a five foot board fence must be placed around the vacant lot at the corner of Main and Water street, and also around the lot formerly occupied by the Betz building on East Main street.

To Inspect Dam

The mayor and city commissioners will begin an inspection tour Thursday evening at 7 o'clock of the city filtration plant, the Savage mountain reservoir and Piney Run dam, comprising the city's water system.

It is planned to place the city's sources of water in the best possible condition and also to construct a small cottage at Piney Run for the city watchman.

The council will also consider the advisability of allowing fishing from the banks of Piney Run dam. Mayor W. H. Lemmert appeared before the Allegany-Garrett County Sportsmen's Association last evening with a letter from George L. Hall, chief engineer of the state board of health opposing the use of the dam for fishing, primarily to prevent contamination of the city's water supply.

The mayor stated that City Attorney W. S. Jenkins was studying the matter with a view of devising a plan by which fishing could be permitted under regulations satisfactory to the state health board engineers.

Former Mayor Frederick Crowe, who presided at the sportsmen's meeting, agreed with the state board of health that fishing should be prohibited at the dam for the duration of the war, unless health authorities were satisfied that it could be regulated without injury to the property or contaminating the city's water supply.

Commissioned Captain

W. Nell Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cook, Beall street, this city, who joined the United States Army recently, after being employed for the past six months in the office of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia, was commissioned a captain last week.

He will be in command of the Command Hundred Fifty-Fifth Battalion, Corps of Military Police, Aberdeen. Capt. Cook, a former member of the Metropolitan police force, Washington, D. C., graduated from George Washington law school. While attending Beall elementary and high schools, he was a carrier for the Cumberland Morning News.

To Enter Service

Richard C. Holben, exalted ruler of Frostburg Lodge, No. 470, B. P. O. Elks, will leave June 12 from District Board 4, this city, to begin training for military service. He is applied for training in the volunteer officers corps after taking three months of basic training with other draftees.

Holben, son of former Tax Collector and Mrs. C. A. Holben, is the second exalted ruler of the lodge to enter military service in

BARTON POSTMASTER'S APPOINTMENT APPROVED BY U. S. SENATE

BARTON, June 3.—The appointment of Patrick E. Conroy as postmaster of the Barton post office was confirmed by the United States Senate along with four other Maryland appointments.

Conroy first assumed the position of postmaster in the Barton office in January 1934 when he succeeded Albert Frenzel. He was reappointed in 1936 when the office was given a third class rating. The approval by the Senate marks the third appointment for Conroy, who prior to accepting the position in 1934, was employed as a salesman by the Prichard corporation.

Morigi is back to 200 pounds now and is doing his bit for Uncle Sam.

People Are First Aid Conscious, Carl Perry Says

County Chairman Presents Mt. Savage Girl Scouts with Certificates

MT. SAVAGE, June 3.—People in Allegany county have become "first aid conscious" in the past year, Carl Perry, chairman of the Red Cross first aid in this county, stated last night when he presented certificates to the Girl Scouts who have completed the first aid course.

Over 4,000 citizens in this section have received certificates and a number of others are now taking the course, Perry said. He stressed the point that first aid was not only helpful in wartime emergencies, but was beneficial at all times.

In conjunction with his talk Perry presented a motion picture entitled "Before the Doctor Comes." This picture displayed all the important points learned by those taking first aid.

Miss Mildred Diehl, Cumberland, who instructed the Girl Scouts class, gave a brief congratulatory talk to the girls. Fifty certificates were presented.

Ceremony Is Performed at the Home of the Bride's Parents

BARTON, June 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Metz announce the marriage of their daughter, Marie Aleda, to Oris McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis McCormick. The ceremony was performed last evening at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. Cyril J. Hoover, pastor of the Methodist church.

The attendants were Miss Alberta Goebel, cousin of the bride, and Giffen McCormick, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride was attired in a navy blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of orchids. The maid of honor was attired in a black dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of rose buds.

The bride is a graduate of Barton high school, class of 39, and completed a course at the Maryland school of Beauty, class of 40. The bridegroom is employed as a truck driver for the Metz Coal Company.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home. Attending were Mrs. John Milligan, and sons, Jack and Albert, Mrs. Jane Connolly, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd, Lonaconing; Eldridge and Franklin Warnick, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Metz, Mr. and Mrs. John Bucklew, the Rev. and Mrs. Cyril J. Hoover and Mrs. Pearl Goebel.

Steinbeck Film Has Colorful Settings

Brought to life on one of the most fascinating settings ever designed for a motion picture, John Steinbeck's best-seller novel, "Tortilla Flat," filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Spencer Tracy.

BALL ROOM Dancing Is Fun

LEE WINTER STUDIOS

Hedy Lamarr and John Garfield, opens today at the Maryland theater.

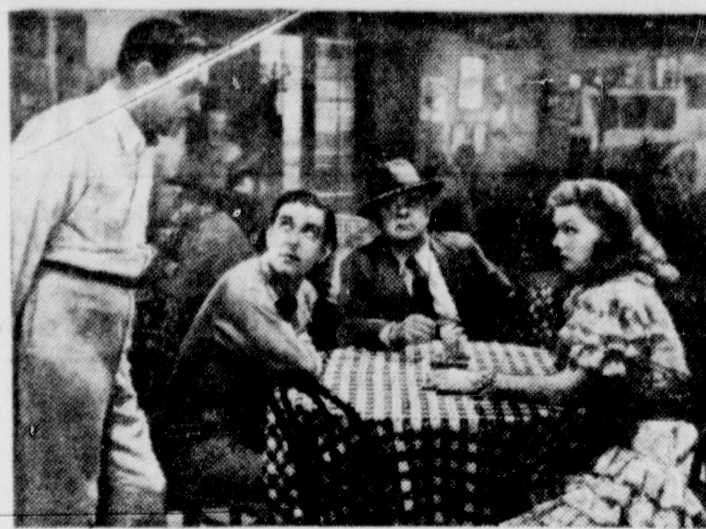

Accurately recreated to the last detail, the set includes a street two blocks long, with the paisano shacks under the pines. It covered an area of three acres. The set was built over a period of six weeks, after set designers and camera crews had gathered data and materials at Monterey.

One of the most unusual stories ever brought to the screen, "Tortilla Flat" deals with the happy-go-lucky life of the California paisanos who live a carefree existence on Tortilla Flat. Tracy, as Pilon, is the leader of a band of paisanos. The youngest and best looking is Danny, played by Garfield. Pilon's greatest admirer is Pablo, portrayed by Akim Tamiroff.

They are content until Dolores (Sweets) Ramirez comes to the flats and Danny goes to work because he loves her. Frank Morgan is seen in another memorable character from the book, the Pirate.

One broken five-pound flat iron contains enough iron to make four hand grenades.

SCENE FROM "JUKE GIRL"

Glamorous Girls Seen in "Broadway"

Hollywood's most expensive dancing chorus trips the light fantastic in Bruce Manning's Universal production of "Broadway," headlining co-stars George Raft and Pat O'Brien. The picture opens tomorrow at the Strand theater.

The luxury chorus tripped—during the making of the magnificent sum of $350 per chorine per week as averages go. This is far and away above the wage scale ordinarily paid an "assembly line" of nifty shapes attached to passable agile feet. Usually chorines draw $75 a week, and when they are required to speak lines, $100.

"Broadway" breaks precedent largely because each of the chorus has a critically important role to contribute to the play. "Broadway" is not a spectacular musical. Rather, it is a starkly realistic drama with musical elaborations.

Thus, heading the galaxy are Janet Blair and Anne Gwynne, both of whom have entrenched themselves in films as able leading ladies. Miss Blair is Raft's romantic interest in "Broadway" and his professional hoofing partner. She also sings a song in the manner in which she is peculiarly talented.

"Juke Girl" To Open At Liberty Tomorrow

A hardy film that packs plenty of excitement and romance will make its local bow at the Liberty theater tomorrow. The title of the picture, "Juke Girl," in itself speaks of the warmth, color and excitement of the story. The film features one of the most dynamic acting trios in Hollywood—Ann Sheridan, Ronald Reagan and Richard Whorf. Sheridan, who recently scored such a grand hit in a difficult characterization for "Kings Row," follows it up with a different type but equally difficult role in "Juke Girl." She is cast as a girl to whom dancing means everything. Wherever there's music and gaiety, there you'll find Ann. When the picture opens Ann and her girl friend, played by Paye Emerson, are working in a Florida tavern frequented by a bunch of gruff but friendly itinerant fruit and vegetable pickers.

The people are hard-workers by day and spend their nights trying to crowd every minute with enjoyment. Into this town come two pals, played by Ronald Reagan and Richard Whorf, looking for work. They are completely different emotionally and in their ideas of right and wrong.

When they first meet Ann Sheridan, Reagan and she are attracted to each other almost immediately, but Whorf doesn't pay much attention to her. They soon learn that Henry Madden, a role played by Gene Lockhart, who owns a large packing plant, runs the town's industry and to a large extent its social life. When anyone wanted a favor or a job they had to see Lockhart or his cohorts.

Buck Jones Appears In Embassy Western

Buck Jones, appearing in the latest Rough Rider series, Monogram's "Below the Border," which starts today at the Embassy theater, can boast of a background of hard riding and quick shooting. His life has been a series of actionful events, starting when he was a youngster on his father's ranch in Oklahoma. Even before Buck was able to climb into a saddle, he was an expert in marksmanship and fancy roping. A member of the United States Cavalry on duty along the Mexican border, Buck finished his term, leaving behind years of thrilling experiences. He later served in the Philippines and was wounded during a native uprising. On his return to the states he enjoyed a long stay with many wild west organizations, among them the famous Millers 101 Ranch wild west show. Finally he drifted to Hollywood where his movie parts skyrocketed him to fame as the top Western star of all time. In his latest melodrama, "Below the Border," he is co-starred with Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton.

"BROADWAY" STAR

Janet Blair appears as the nightclub dancing star in Universal's "Broadway," which opens Friday at the Strand theater.

Action and Comedy On Garden Program

Action and comedy are stressed in the double feature at the Garden today. The former predominates in "All Through the Night," an exciting melodrama starring Humphrey Bogart. An expose of the fifth column menace, the picture has an excellent supporting cast that includes Conrad Veidt, Kaaren Verne, Jane Darwell, Frank McHugh and Peter Lorre.

The comedy is "A Guy and a Girl," starring George Murphy and Lucille Ball.

Yankees' Bonham Extends Winning Streak

Big Righthander Bests White Sox For Victory No. 8

Champs Keep Rolling—Gordon Boosts Hitting String to 19 Games

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Ernie (Tiny) Bonham, leading candidate for pitcher of the year honors, stretched his winning streak to eight games today as the world champion Yankees coasted to a 4 to 1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox, in the opening engagement of a home stand against the Western club of the American League.

For the Sox it was almost a moral victory, because they made more hits off the righthander than any other club this season, maneuvered a couple of bases on balls and escaped a shutout by George Kuehl's sixth inning homer into the right field stands.

Previously Bonham had pitched four shutouts in seven starts, had allowed only five bases on balls, and had given no more than seven hits in one game. Today Chicago made eight.

The Yankees waded in to Bill Dietrich, the bespectacled right hander, for a run in the first inning on successive singles by Frank Crosetti and Buddy Hassett and a force play by Tom Henrich.

Then in the third Joe DiMaggio, who also had singled in the first, lined his tenth home run of the season into the lower left field stands scoring two runners ahead of him—Hassett, who had singled, and Henrich, who had walked.

It was New York's twenty-second victory in twenty-six games and seventh straight over Chicago. More statistics—the Yankees completed their sixteenth double play, Joe Gordon extended his hitting streak to nineteen games and Hassett ran to his fourteen, getting three hits. The box score:

PHILADELPHIA, June 3 (AP)—Jack Knott demonstrated his most effective form of the season for the Philadelphia Athletics today, limiting Detroit to six hits and touching off a batting rally that sewed up a 5 to 1 triumph.

The Tigers got their lone run on a homer by Third Sacker Frank Higgins.

Young Hal White hurled tightly for Detroit until the fifth frame. He led off the inning by beating Jack Wallasea, Athletic shortstop, who was carried off the field but later recovered, apparently without ill effect. With a runner on first for Wallasea, Knott nicked White for a single, followed immediately by one-base blows by Mike Kreivich and Pete Suder, for a total of three runs. The box score:

The Sportlight

GRANTLAND RICE

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

1942 Tops

June means the half-mile post or the halfway mark in the sport program for 1942—to finish, no one knows where nor when, as a smart bard has put it.

The world goes back many million years, but it has known no year as important as 1942 will be before it closes out. In this vast upheaval of, of course, plays only a minor part, but according to the heads of the government, the army and navy, it still has a job to do.

At the present spot this is the way the 1942 ranking looks—Baseball—New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Boxing—Joe Louis—with Conn, Pastor, Bettina, Savold and Mauriello in a scramble for second place. Provided Conn gets a ring chance.

Racing—Alab, which still has shut out to best in the coming Belmont stakes on Army-Navy-U. S. O. day. If shut out can add the Belmont to his derby win the White horse will be in front.

Golf—Hogan, Nelson and Snead. Tennis—We'll let you pick this one. Don Budge is still the best.

Football—Too far away and too many complex angles to get any rating now, college or professional.

The Sure Spots

The Yankees remain the best team in baseball. They have already won five out of the last six A. L. pennants and five out of the last six world series. And so far they haven't shown any definite signs of weakening or slowing down in 1942. Even with their hard-hammering outfield well below normal form they still have the defensive strength to keep on winning.

The only team that might annoy the Dodgers is the St. Louis Cardinals, who have enough stuff to break out in a winning race for short notice.

There is still no one close to Joe Louis among the heavyweights. When he will be allowed to put on another championship test is anybody's guess.

Chisox Gets Hits For One Pitcher But Not Another

Contrasting Fates of Haynes and Smith Baffles Pilot Dykes

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—This is a topsy-turvy season for the Chicago White Sox, but nothing that has happened to them has been any more baffling than the contrasting fates of Pitchers Edgar Smith and Joe Haynes.

Last year the chunky, blond Smith was one of the leading southpaws in the American League with an earned run average of 3.18 and a won-lost record of thirteen and seventeen. This year he has started nine games and hasn't won a single one, although getting charged with eight setbacks.

Last year Haynes, good looking son-in-law of President Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators (who also is the father-in-law of Boston's Joe Cronin) spent the entire season nursing a sore arm, and for twenty-eight innings of work had a record of 0-0. This year in only twenty-six innings he has won five games without a defeat.

Can't Be Explained

Nobody can explain why the team can't win with one pitcher and can't lose with the other. Both have been pitching good ball. Haynes allowing only one earned run in the last twenty-three innings. But this hasn't been the secret of his miraculous victories, three of which came within four days last week.

The puny-hitting Sox simply seem to carry a magic charm to the plate when Haynes goes to the mound for one of his relief roles. May 27 he went into the game in the fifth and the Sox scored two runs in the eighth to beat Cleveland 9 to 7.

This was modest enough showing, but May 28 Chicago came out of a slumber to score four runs in the first half of the eighth inning against the St. Louis Browns and Haynes went into the game with a one-run deficit. In the ninth the Sox laid in five more runs and won 12-8.

Then on Memorial day Haynes was sent to the mound in the seventh, and his teammates got him seven runs in the ninth to down Detroit 12-5.

Smith To Face Yanks

"I guess it's just luck," Haynes suggested today. He said he had neuritis in his right elbow all last season, but that now his arm feels fine.

Manager Jimmy Dykes says Haynes is "one of these pitchers that a ball club gets runs for. Some pitchers are like that. Whenever they go to the mound the team will hit. But we can't even get a loud foul for Smithy."

Smithy himself grins ruefully at thought of the situation. One of his losses was 1-0 to Ernie Bonham, the leading pitcher of the year, when the New York Yankees were in Chicago recently.

The unlucky lefty will face the Yanks again tomorrow, and he observed in the dressing room before today's game, "the law of averages ought to catch up with me pretty soon. At least I won't have to pitch against Bonham tomorrow."

May Recaps 1936 Heights

The agent told Al Sabath, the Chicago lawyer, just this, and that's how Basil and Alab, who finally finished fourth in the Widener, got together. It's also one of the two big reasons why the "Piracerker" out of Sunny-side, Wash., has bounced back from the disgraced kid who went home last fall because he couldn't get a winner, to a spot where he might even reach his heights of 1936, when he led all the nation's jockeys.

Alab is the more important reason just now, because, having piloted Al Sabath's filer to second place in the derby and to victory in the Preakness and Withers, Basil is odds-on to boot the Chicago champion home in the mile-and-a-half Belmont stakes Saturday. The other reason is Market Wise, Lou Tufano's rags-to-riches express who whipped the mighty Whirlaway in the Suburban last Saturday, with James doing one of the season's best steering jobs.

Upset Whirlaway

Through a sports-writing friend, James first got the mount on Market Wise in the Jockey Club Gold Cup last fall. And the first crack out of the box, he pulled a rabbit out of the hat by upsetting Whirlaway then.

With two mounts like Alab and Market Wise, 24-year-old James is the first to admit he has "a lot going for me."

City Tennis Tourney

Draw Carded Tomorrow

The drawings for all events in the annual city championship tennis tournament, which starts Saturday, will be made tomorrow evening at 7:30 at the Garlitz courts.

Entries may be made at that time or they can be given to Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie at the Cumberland Country Club, Joe Garlitz at the Garlitz courts, Lorraine Eisenberg, Robert Bane or L. E. Van Sant.

Conn Loses Cast

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Although Private Billy Conn, heavy-weight boxing title contender, still is in the Governors Island hospital, the cast has been removed from the left hand he fractured in a kitchen scrap with his father-in-law, James Smith, of Pittsburgh.

RACING NOTES

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Portable, a three-year-old filly claimed by Mrs. W. Rosen May 12 for $2,500, turned in the smartest effort of her career today when she defeated five rivals in the featured Belmont purse at Belmont Park.

The filly had won her fourth straight race on the day she was claimed, but today's score was her first in three trips to the post for her new owner.

Hal Price Headley's favored Anticlimax trailed the winner by three lengths while beating Mrs. W. A. Crawford's Blue Gino by the same margin for the place.

Portable, an $1140 for $2 chance under Charlie Waller, stepped the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:43 1-5.

Valinda Orphan, one of the short-priced winners in the history of legalized racing in New England, won the featured Geneva purse, a mile test for three-year-olds, at Suffolk Downs.

The Valinda Farms' entrant, leaving the post at 2-5 odds, ran the mile in 1:38 1-5, scoring by six lengths over Mrs. Boerger's A-One.

John L. Sullivan's Cold Crack finished third.

The winner paid $2.40, $2.20 and $2.20 across the board.

Mrs. Ralph McIlvann's Bright Willie, one of the season's better three-year-olds, captured the six-furlong Stanton handicap at Delaware Park, defeating a quintet of highly regarded opponents.

Handled neatly by Porter Roberts, Bright Willie scored by five lengths over Joe Ray, who saved the place from Warlock by a length.

In boosting his stock for the coming Kent stakes, the winner took the distance in 1:13 and paid $3.40.

Sun Again Won't Start in Belmont

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Warren Wright's Sun Again, the Calumet farm's top three-year-old, will not start in the Belmont stakes.

The colt arrived at the Calumet Farm in Lexington, Ky., yesterday and trainer Ben Jones's plans for the three-year-old he expected to win the 1942 Kentucky derby were not revealed.

Sun Again was scratched from the derby at the last minute but did finish in a dead heat for second with Requested in the Preakness.

Martin Is Urged Not To Give Up On Tommy Gomez

Florida Writer Declares Young Heavyweight Has Learned Lesson

By WITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, June 3. (World)—Our good friend Pete Norton of the Tampa, Fla. Tribune takes pen in hand to urge us not to give up on Tommy Gomez, the young soldier heavyweight who, about a year ago, we thought was going places. We had no idea at the time that where he would go would be out. Not as a result of Journeyman Buddy Scott sinking a nobby fist into Tommy's middle, at any rate.

Anyway, Brother Pete still thinks a lot of Gomez, and tells us to keep an eye on the lad's performance against Tommy Tucker in a navy relief show at Jacksonville June 12. He writes:

"A year ago I touted Tommy Gomez to you so strongly that you picked him as a possible heavyweight champion in 1942. He promptly proceeded to go out and get his head knocked off by Buddy Scott, a fair-to-middling scrapper from Washington, in seven rounds.

"And I don't blame you for feeling that your confidence was betrayed.

Packs Real Wallop
However, soldier Gomez didn't let that knockout defeat stop him. In fact, it taught him the lesson that he had to train for a fight every time he stepped into the ring.

"Since that fateful night, the soldier has scored knockouts over Jim Robinson, Joe O'Gatty, Cowboy Gregg, Bob Sikes, Jimmy Desola and Leo Center, and won a decision over Cowboy Beech. However, and this is important, he met Scott in a return bout and won the unanimous decision.

"If he knocks out Tucker I believe he rates consideration as an upper bracket heavyweight, better than some of the Simons, Paycheks, Dorazios, etc., that have been fed to Joe Louis. If he loses to Tucker I'll admit my mistake and forget Gomez as a title contender for the duration.

"In closing I'll say this: Gomez is the only boxer in the business now who has a chance to knock out Louis."

Pete hastens to strengthen his bridges between that last bold statement by admitting that Gomez probably would beat out Louis in a round fight now, but he insists that if Tommy landed the first punch it would be one whole of a fight.

Puzzling Situation
Which it would be, at that, if the stocky youngster connected first, as the guy really can hit. Land sakes, how he can hit, and with either hand. We'd rate him no worse than 50-50 against a gorilla if he were allowed the first chance to play tag. Louis wouldn't give him that chance, and would take that first whack himself, but Pete's idea is that Gomez is the one with punch enough to kavo the champ, if the punch was mailed early enough.

One thing has a little puzzled about the navy relief bout in Jacksonville. Gomez is a soldier at Camp Blanding, with the same status in the army as Louis. Gomez has been fighting fairly regularly, and has a June charity bout approved.

Yet the army authorities still are mum on the issue of whether Louis will be permitted to fight any more, with the intimation being that he won't.

Gomez can fight a June bout, but Louis, the champion, may not get an okay. There is a little inconsistency here, or is it just our imagination?

Four Clubs Are Tied For Rocking Chair Softball Loop Lead

The Knights of Columbus and the B. P. O. Elks, two of the four clubs tied for first place in the Rocking Chair Softball League, will clash this evening on the Fort Hill "A" field.

In other contests today, the State Guards, sharing the lead, will oppose the City Police on the Community Park "B" diamond, the C. & A. Gassers, who also figure in the deadlock for first, will tangle with the Junior Association of Commerce on the Fort Hill "B" layout and the knights of Pythias will play the Red Men on the Community Park "A" diamond.

In games Tuesday, the Elks trimmed the State Guards 14-1 for the latter's first setback, the K. of C. whipped the City Police 10-6 while the Gassers won by forfeit over the Red Men. The Jaycee-K. of P. contest was postponed.

Middlecamp Captures Red Cross Net Title

Lawrence Middlecamp won the men's singles championship in the first of a series of American Red Cross War Relief Fund tennis tournaments by defeating David Weiss 6-1, 6-2, 6-4, in the finals yesterday on the Dingle courts.

Previously, Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie annexed the women's singles, Loraine Eisenberg and Ross Palmer the men's doubles and Mrs. Thomas Mills and Robert Bane the mixed doubles.

Wolfert Picks Shut Out To Win, Alsab To Disappoint in Belmont

By IRA WOLFERT

NEW YORK, June 3.—Something about ten o'clock at night, after the way to win the war had been discovered, the folks turned their attention to who is going to win the Belmont stakes Saturday — Alsab or Shut Out or some shady woodpecker character who is just in there wearing horseshoes for luck.

This was in a friendly little room out where the stables are at Belmont, in fact right next to Alsab's stall. Ultimately the proposition on any one horse had so many takers, the radio was drowned out. The radio had its mouth wide open but it wasn't making any more noise than a midget in a lion's cage.

Needs a Lullaby

So then Alsab's groom came tearing in and shouted, "Who shut off that radio?" The only fellow who could hear him heard him wrong and said, "That's a good idea," and turned the radio off. "It was getting a little noisy in here at that," he agreed with himself affably.

A look of anguish animated the groom's face. "My Sab can't sleep without there music going," he said and leaped to turn on a lullaby full blast.

Everybody was very suspicious about that. The groom is known as "Tuxedo Junction," or, if you are in a hurry, "Tuxedo." This arises from his passion for a melody of that name. His ears are never without this song or as reasonable a facsimile of same as he can devise, and when all else fails, when he has been gagged and bound to prevent him from either singing, humming, whistling, tapping or otherwise committing the song, then he has been known to think it. Therefore, everybody was quite sure it was the groom who wanted to hear the radio, not Alsab.

But a delegation went into the Sab's stall and there, sure enough, the beast was, all plopped over on its side and looking as contented as a girl being mowed at by a crooner. We do not know whether Alsab was ever out in a canoe on a moonlit night, but some of the

Sain's Pitching Features Braves' Win over Cards

Redbirds Bow 4-3 in Army-Navy Relief Twilight Battle

ST. LOUIS, June 3. (P)—Behind the masterful relief pitching of Johnny Sain, who stopped three Cardinal rallies, the Boston Braves scored three runs in the first inning and added one in the fifth to defeat the Redbirds, 4 to 3, in an army-navy relief twilight game before a crowd of 11,477 today.

Twice the Cardinals had the bases loaded with just one out, in the sixth and ninth innings, but each time the Braves erased the threat with sizzling double plays.

Sain got a bit erratic and filled the bags without a hit in the ninth, but then forced Enos Slaughter to line to Max West who stepped on first base for a double play, unassisted, to end the game.

Getting the contest under way, after a military exhibition, Boston knocked Murry Dickson out of the box in short order. Tommy Holmes tripled to left and scored on Frank Demaree's grounder to short. A single and two walks filled the bases as Harry Gumbert was called in to relieve. West greeted him with a single to center, scoring Eddie Miller and Paul Waner.

Demaree's single, a wild pitch and a single by Ernie Lombardi gave Boston its fourth run.

The Cards came back with two tallies in their half on Johnny Hopp's double, Marion's long triple and Gumbert's fly. George Kurowski singled in the other St. Louis run in the sixth.

Jimmy Brown tripled to left with only one down in the seventh but died there.

The Braves also filled the bases with one away in the ninth but Gumbert forced Miller and John Conney to pop out.

Lou Tost, who started on the hill for Boston, was relieved by Sain in the sixth after yielding five of the Cards' nine hits but got credit for the victory. The box score:

Shut Out the Winner

We remember making a note on what this indicated about the Belmont, but that suit has gone to the tailor's and we cannot buy it back until Shut Out wins the race. Oh yes, Shut Out is going to win. So we hear, at least.

We hear this from Eddie Arcaro himself and from Challeon's stable of acquaintances. Arcaro is a guesser just like the rest of us. He passed up Shut Out and picked Devil Diver to win the derby and then again to win the Preakness. This was like picking air out of your hat with your fingers, but he says he has reformed now and will not try to do that any more.

"Shut Out is the most misunderstood horse of the year," he says. "I understand him now."

It may be said without fear of contradiction that the animal at least is the most lightly held derby winner of the year. Shut Out beat Alsab all fair and square and without any luck to it in the derby. He lost to the same steed in the same way in the Preakness. This, horsemen say, may very well have been due to the fact that the Pimlico track is made to order for a horse that runs like Alsab and the Sab has always run a good race there. Belmont, on the other hand, isn't made to any special order, but is just for running.

Well, that's what they say. The Challeon people have an even more earnest argument. Their horse went to the post a favorite against Shut Out at Belmont last week. Arcaro was up on Shut Out and had no intention of winning the race. He was under orders to pace Shut Out for an eighth of a mile longer, or the same distance as the Belmont stakes. That was his primary objective. If he could pick up the race against Challeon on the way, nobody would get sore, but he wasn't planning to waste any time doing that.

The result was: Shut Out first, Challeon place. And the Challeon people are going around saying an horse that can do that to them, just casual-like, with the back-of-the-hand, so to speak, ain't at all no kind of a mule.

So our two is on Shut Out to win and Alsab to disappoint. We are taking a portable radio to the track, too, to make sure Alsab gets dreamy in time. — North American Newspaper Alliance.

GARDEN STATE TRACK READY TO OPEN JULY 18

CAMDEN, N. J., June 3. (P)—Promoters of the Garden State track say they're already under the wire in the park's first race — one against the government's Saturday deadline halting construction.

"We could hold a race meeting right now if we wanted to," said Publicity Director Jimmy Loftus. "You might say the numbers are up and we're waiting for the red light to make it official."

Backers of the $1,500,000 park were lucky. The weather has been perfect with hardly a heavy dew to slow up outdoor work, despite prayers for rain by a church group, which hoped a cloudburst or something equally potent would stop the job.

"We didn't even worry about rain," said Loftus, crossing his fingers. "Even if it had poured in buckets it wouldn't have made any difference."

Thus, apparently, all the management has to worry about now is getting horses — and customers — to the plant for the forty-nine-day meeting opening July 18.

Army Commission Advocated for Louis

Yesterday's Cryptquote: WHAT REASON HAS BEEN UN-ABLE TO EFFECT, LAPSE OF TIME HAS OFTEN CURED

Retired Railroad Man Is Killed By Freight Car

Garrett L. Beale, 62, Struck in B. and O. Yards Here

Found under a freight car with one leg and one foot severed from his body, Garrett L. Beale, 62, 440 Baltimore avenue, died in the Baltimore and Ohio railroad yards, between Williams street and Oldtown road, shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

B. and O. officials were uncertain about the cause of the accident, but seemed to believe that Beale, a retired freight conductor on the Western Maryland railway, was walking through the yards when he was struck, probably by a moving freight car and not by a locomotive. The accident occurred in the classification yards where there is constant switching of cars, one official said, adding that Beale probably was struck before he saw the car approaching. As far as could be learned, no one saw the accident.

Workers at the scene moved the man from under the car but he died before he could be taken to a hospital for treatment.

Beale was retired by the Western Maryland railway four years ago and had worked at the Knob Mount, W. Va., yards before his retirement.

Thirty-four years ago when Beale was a member of the United States Marine corps, he sailed around the world on the U. S. S. Louisiana on which President Theodore Roosevelt was a passenger.

After completing his four years enlistment in the Marine corps, he returned to Cumberland and went to work for the Western Maryland railway.

He was a son of the late James W. and Sarah Beale and made his home with his sister, Mrs. Meredith Kelley, 440 Baltimore avenue. Two brothers, Lee, Keyser, W. Va., and Cleveland, Smithfield, Pa., also survive.

He was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Incendiary Fire Damages LaVale Home, Police Say

Odor of Kerosene Said To Have Permeated House; Auto Is Gutted

Fire which early yesterday morning destroyed the automobile and damaged the home occupied by George Fitchett, LaVale, was of incendiary origin, state police said last night.

Both state police and Chief R. J. Snyder, of the LaVale Fire Department, said the odor of kerosene permeated the house. Furniture was soaked with kerosene, Sgt. John H. Doud, of the state police said. Troopers Harry Harrison and Charles McLane are investigating.

Police said they were asked by one of Fitchett's neighbors to notify the fire department of the blaze at 2:10 a. m. and it undoubtedly was a quick response that prevented extensive damage, officers said.

Fireman said when they arrived they noticed Fitchett's automobile burning. The interior was gutted before the flames were extinguished, they added.

It was then that fire in the house was discovered; a burning day bed was thrown outside. A living room suite also was badly burned before flames were extinguished.

Damage to the automobile, however, was the greatest loss although paint in the house was blistered from the heat and there was smoke damage.

Fitchett, who lives alone, was at work during the fire, police said. The property is owned by the Police and Fireman's Welfare Association in Cumberland.

Cook Says Citizens Are Dissatisfied with State Administration

FREDERICK, June 3.—Thomas E. Cook, candidate for governor in the coming election this fall, has just returned to his home here from a two weeks trip through the Eastern Shore of Maryland. He first visited Elkton, where he met with some of his political friends and then on to the cities of Chestertown, Easton, Salisbury, Ocean City, Pocomoke City, Crisfield and Princess Anne, contacting his supporters in each place. Mr. Cook says he received "wonderful encouragement" from all the groups he met with. He also talked with many farmers and laborers, who voiced themselves as "being very much dissatisfied with the present administration."

Throughout the entire Shore, Cook passed out circulars in bold face type warning the voters of Maryland to be aware of "the old political hacks, who are trying to whitewash themselves with the war." Cook states in the circular that the old Free State of Maryland will stand forever and that "the state must be turned back to the people and taken out of the hands of a few professional politicians who have had their hands at the very throats of the taxpayers for many years."

Dean and Parrish To Close Business

LaVale Farm Machine Firm Will Quit Due to War Conditions

Due to war conditions the firm of Dean and Parrish, dealers in trucks and farming machinery, located in LaVale, will close out its business and sell all goods on hand within the next several days.

Kester B. Dean and his son-in-law, Edward B. Parrish, came here last September and established their business in the remodeled building formerly occupied by the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company. The building at one time was the warehouse of the James Clark Distilling Company.

The building, owned by Abraham Feldstein, contains 10,500 feet of storage space and a fifteen foot ceiling. The property also includes a loading platform and railroad siding.

Parrish said that he and his partner decided to quit business due to the government's ban on the sale of trucks and the fact that no farming equipment could be obtained.

"We came here at the wrong time," Parrish commented, "but we enjoyed doing business with people of the Cumberland area and we may return at some time in the future to renew acquaintances."

Dean plans to return to Charlottesville, W. Va., while Parrish has accepted a position with the Navy department and will go to Philadelphia in the near future.

Lalor Presents Cub Pack No. 3 With Charter

Group Sponsored by LaVale P-TA Exhibits Craft Work at Affair

Raymond C. Lalor, Potomac Council Scout executive, presented a charter to Cumberland Cub Pack No. 3 last night at the LaVale Firemen's hall. The Cub pack is sponsored by the LaVale Parent-Teacher Association.

Alvin B. Storey, chairman, presided at the ceremonies and along with H. Reford Aldridge and L. Leslie Helmer assisted Lalor in the presentation.

One feature of the night's program was an exhibit of various craft work by the cubs and several stunts and songs were presented by members of the den. One den had on exhibit a group of kites and they will have a kite flying contest later in the month.

Bob-cat badges were presented to thirty-two charter members, and ten additional members accepted during May were invested.

Under supervision of Cubmaster Harry A. Smith, the following den mothers and den chiefs have taken a training course in their responsibilities: Mesdames Alvin B. Storey, Adam Burkett, Thomas K. Burk, H. S. Everline, George Leyh and J. V. Lloyd, and Earl Conn. Paul Goldsworthy, Charles McCormick, Raymond Hansell, Ernest Screen and G. H. Price. Each of the six dens presented a stunt and displayed articles made by the boys.

Cubmaster Smith is assisted by W. R. Anderson and Harry K. Conde, assistant cubmasters; Alvin B. Storey, chairman pack committee, and J. H. G. de Coux and Paul Campbell, committeemen.

Robert A. Mathews, of Long, was arrested yesterday on Route 40 in LaVale for exceeding fifty miles an hour. Trooper George M. Browning who made the arrest sped Mathews to trial magistrates' court and after a "speedy" hearing he was fined $10 and costs. It was all over in a "jiffy," Trooper Browning said.

B. & O. Veterans Will Hold Picnic Here on July 29

Annual Event Transferred from Terra Alta to Constitution Park

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the staging of the annual picnic of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Veterans Association and Allison Lodge No. 4, ladies auxiliary, in Constitution Park on Wednesday, July 29.

The picnic which attracts between 400 and 500 Baltimore and Ohio railroad employees and members of their families annually is being staged in Cumberland for the first time. For the past four years the affair has been held in Terra Alta, W. Va., and prior to that was held in Connellsville and McKeesport, Pa.

Invitations will be sent to employees and their families in Brunswick, Martinsburg, Terra Alta, Baltimore, and other points east and west on the B. & O. system.

A program of games, races and athletic contests in the park pool is being arranged and dancing at the casino will climax the day's activities. The program will commence at 1 p. m. and will be concluded in the evening.

Committees Named
Henry W. Bloss is general chairman of the men's picnic committee. Other members are Walter W. Seel, president of Division No. 5, B. & O. Veterans Association; Ned Simon, Myers G. Light, A. H. Batle and Christopher McCullough.

Mrs. G. A. Criss, president of Allison lodge No. 4, ladies auxiliary, is general chairman of the women's committee, which also includes Mrs. G. W. Wenrich, Mrs. Walter W. Seel, Mrs. Myers G. Light, Mrs. Hanson Rice, Mrs. Annie Salyards, Mrs. Helen Simon, Mrs. Arthur Souder, Mrs. Pauline Smith and Mrs. Clayton Campbell.

Home Building Program Will Be Discussed Friday

250 Units Planned in Event Cumberland Gets Defense Area Rating

Plans will be outlined for the construction of 250 homes in Cumberland at a meeting to be held Friday at 1 p. m. at Central Y.M.C.A. at which contractors, representatives of building supply and financial institutions will confer with the real estate board and chamber of commerce.

The meeting is being held primarily for the purpose of having a building program ready in case the National Housing Authority gives Cumberland a defense area rating with high priority ratings. Harold W. Smith, chamber secretary, said. The number of homes planned is about the same number as were constructed in Cumberland last year and would provide some of the necessary shelter for persons expected to locate here as a result of expansion of local plants and building of the new ordnance plant.

Another reason for the meeting was the request made by G. Holmes Perkins, field representative of the NHA, for further data as to financing, contractors available for house construction and possibilities of remodeling present buildings into apartments for which there is a demand.

Two High School Students Suffer Minor Injuries

Two Port Hill high school students suffered minor injuries in accidents yesterday at the school. Marian Dyer, 15, of 1023 Lafayette avenue, suffered a dislocated right knee in an unusual manner. She told hospital attaches she was sitting on the school steps when two other girl students sat on her lap and the weight of both threw her knee out of place.

Melvin Mease, 15, of 136 Elder street, suffered a laceration on the right side of his face when a piece of wood flew from a lathe at the school. After treatment at the hospital both students were released.

Four Divorce Suits Are Filed Here

Mrs. Catherine E. Powers filed suit in circuit court yesterday for a partial divorce from Thomas P. Powers on charges of cruelty. The suit was docketed by her attorney, Paul M. Fletcher.

The bill of complaint states the couple was married July 7, 1934, at Keyser, W. Va., and that one child was born of the marriage. The plaintiff asks custody of the child and temporary alimony and counsel fees.

READY FOR INSPECTION—Cadet Captain Robert B. Gelder, Princess Anne, Md., completes a saber salute as he presents his command, the First Platoon of Company "A", to Col. Lawrence J. F. Filing of Price Lists Extended Until July 1

Statements on Commodities Must Be Made Monthly by Retailers

Retailers offering to sell cost-of-living commodities must file with the Allegany County rationing boards a statement showing their maximum price for each such commodity together with an appropriate description or identification of it, on or before July 1, Robert E. Barnard, chairman of the local board, announced yesterday.

The deadline for filing formerly was "on or before June 1, 1942" but has been extended one month, according to a bulletin received by the local board from Lloyd G. Reynolds, state price officer of the Office of Price Administration, Baltimore.

Statements by retailers shall be kept up to date by filing on the first day of every succeeding month a statement of his maximum price for any cost-of-living commodity newly offered for sale during the previous month, together with an appropriate description or identification of the commodity.

Copies Are Available
Reynolds advised the board that "no directions have as yet been received from Washington regarding any particular method of filing or form to be used, but suggested that these lists be alphabetically divided into towns or cities."

Fifty copies of the regulation have been forwarded to the board and retailers desiring to obtain copies may secure them from the Maryland State Office, OPA, 2000 Baltimore Trust building, Baltimore. Commodities designated by the Price Administration as cost-of-living commodities, include:

Tobacco, drugs, toiletries and sundries; apparel and yard goods; food and household sundries; household furniture, appliances and furnishings; hardware and agricultural supplies and ice, fuel and automotive.

169 Items Designated
A total of 169 items are designated as cost-of-living commodities under the general maximum price regulations. Sixteen commodities and nine services are excepted from the regulation.

Pvt. R. J. Stakem, Jr., Arrives in Britain With the U. S. Army

Sgt. Doud Gives Rules To Prevent Automobile Thefts

State Police Officer Lists Dozen Ways Owners Can Help

An even dozen rules to follow in preventing theft of automobiles and aiding in their recovery were announced yesterday by Sgt. John H. Doud, commanding officer of Barracks "C", Maryland State Police, at LaVale.

Because of war restrictions on sale of automobiles, tires and other automotive accessories, there is more danger of thievery now than in the past, he explained.

The rules follow:

1. Record all tire and radio numbers and mark accessories not numbered. Date such records, as this information may be required when thieves are apprehended and tried.

2. Keep unattended cars off streets, particularly at night.

3. If necessary to use car at night, do not park on poorly lighted or little used streets.

Should Lock Cars
4. Lock car at all times and particularly the trunk.

5. If obliged to use parking lots, insist on locking ignition, doors and all compartments when fire rules do not prohibit such locking. While most public repositories will insist that keys be left with cars, an emergency now exists and insistence of car owners collectively can bring about compliance with their wishes.

6. When cars are delivered from garages, do not permit them to stand unattended on the streets for any length of time, as thieves study the habits of proposed victims and will take advantage of such opportunities.

7. When cars are stored in public garages or on parking lots, insist upon a claim check being issued. Do not yield when an attendant says, "You do not need a ticket as I will know you." Remember that without documentary evidence you cannot prove your car was entrusted to their care.

Report Tire Changing
8. Every automobile owner and driver can render assistance to the police by reporting suspicious cases of tire changing whenever and wherever they may be observed. Securing license numbers and the scene of suspicious tire changings may prove of value to the police in event of theft. Don't wait, notify the authorities at once.

9. If cars are kept in private garages, see that locks are strong, as that has cannot be taken off with a screw driver or the hinges removed from the outside.

10. Electric burglar alarm systems, which are now being installed on private garages by automobile owners, will undoubtedly prevent many thefts. The use of this form of protection is desirable wherever possible.

11. Do not leave car registration or driver's license in car as thieves frequently escape arrest by presenting owner's documents when stopped by police officers. Thieves also may present owner's registration card and driver's license to prove ownership when trying to sell stolen cars.

12. Watch and protect your car as never before. Take no chances, as it is now one of your most valuable possessions and in the event of loss you may not be able to replace it.

State Bar Will Study Court Plan At Convention

Discussion of Subject at Atlantic City Is Recommended by Capper

Opening the way for wide public discussion of the subject, the recommendation for the re-organization of the court of appeals to relieve its members of virtually all but appellate work has been added to the program of the annual convention of the State Bar Association to be held June 25 to 27 in Atlantic City.

James W. Chapman, Jr., secretary of the bar association, has announced that the judiciary proposal will be given a place on the program and that Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond, of the court of appeals, will be asked to outline the recommendation, which was incorporated in an interim report of the Governor's Commission on the Judiciary Article of the Constitution of Maryland, Judge Bond is a member of the commission.

Will Distribute Copies
In advance of the convention, printed copies of the recommendation are to be distributed to all members of the Bar Association of Baltimore and the State Bar Association. Advocates of the re-organization of the court of appeals plan to send speakers before interested groups throughout the state until the Legislature takes up the subject at its session starting in January.

At the 1941 session of the Legislature, a bill to relieve the judges sitting on the court of appeals of trial work in their circuits and to reduce the bench from eight to five judges was approved by the House of Delegates but was blocked by a minority in the state senate. It was presented as a proposal to amend the State Constitution and therefore required a three-fifths vote of both houses for approval. It was passed in the House, 88 to 15, but never came to a vote in the Senate.

Capper On Commission
Members of the Governor's Commission of the Judiciary Article of the Constitution of Maryland include Walter C. Capper, of the Allegany County Bar Association. Capper is among the members who joined in the recommendation.
